SUPREME COURT REVISES RULES IN FORCE 50 YEARS

Serving of Injunctions Without Notice to Other Party Will Not Be Permitted After Feb. 1, 1913, Great Britain's Legal Plan Being Accepted for Most Part.

NO MORE REVERSALS ON TECHNICAL ERRORS

Revolutionary Change in Procedure in Equity Cases in Federal Courts Intended to Reduce Cost of Litigation and Eliminate Delays.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Revolutionary changes in procedure in equity cases in Federal courts throughout the United States are effected in revised rules promulgated today by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The object is to reduce the cost of litigation and to eliminate delays.

The Supreme Court today again adjourned without announcing decisions in the Hard Coal Trust, Union Pacific merger or state cases.

Among new rules is one which would prohibit issue of preliminary injunctions without notice to the opposite party and also restricting issues of temporary restraining orders.

The new anti-injunction rule incorporates into practice several demands of labor leaders which they sought to have recognized by the enactment of the so-called Clayton anti-injunction bill.

The new rule follows in general the rules of the Federal courts in the Ninth Circuit, which cover the Pacific Coast states.

New Rule on Injunctions.

The new rule on injunctions provides: "On preliminary injunction shall be granted without notice to the opposite party, nor shall any temporary restraining order be granted without notice to the opposite party, unless it shall clearly appear from specific facts shown by affidavit or by the verified bill, that immediate and irreparable loss or damage will result to the applicant before the matter can be acted on by the court."

In case a temporary restraining order shall be granted without notice to the party against whom it is issued, the matter shall be made returnable at the earliest possible time, in no event later than 10 days from the date of the order, and shall take precedence of all matters, except older matters of the same character. When the matter comes up for hearing the party who obtained the temporary restraining order shall proceed with his application for a preliminary injunction and if he does not do so the court shall dissolve his temporary restraining order.

"Upon two days' notice to the party obtaining such temporary restraining order the opposite party may appear and move the dissolution and modification of the order and in that event the court or judge shall proceed to hear and determine the motion as expeditiously as the ends of justice may require. Every temporary restraining order shall be forthwith filed in the clerk's office."

Task of 17 Months.

The new rules were announced by Chief Justice White from the bench. One of the tasks undertaken by him when he was appointed Chief Justice was to reform procedure in the courts.

He first revised the rules of the Supreme Court itself.

For 17 months the Chief Justice and Justices Lurton and Vandewater have been working on the equity rules as a subcommittee of the Judicial Conference of the United States.

But rules came down from the courts of England with only one or two revisions since the beginning of the republic. The last revision was about 50 years ago.

Chief Justice White, explaining the rules from the bench, grouped the reforms under four or five heads. One was in regard to the exercise of power by the Federal courts in equitable matters. Another was described as being defined primarily to remove all unnecessary steps in modes of pleading and to bring the parties quickly to the issue. Another was described as being a restriction in the modes of taking testimony, particularly in patent and copyright cases.

"The whole intention has been," said the Chief Justice, "to bring the taking of testimony down to a more simplified, inexpensive method."

Another reform, said by the Chief Justice, to be illustrated by the statement that the new rules as a general rule provide for trial by the court instead of a reference of the suit to a referee to take the testimony and report to the court.

The Chief Justice said the new rules did make it impossible for the Appellate Court to reverse suits merely because of errors not prejudicial.

He said the new rules will go into effect Feb. 1.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening paper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

You Are Invited to the Coliseum to Get the Election Returns

THE promptest and most complete election bulletins will be displayed, under the most comfortable conditions to be found in St. Louis, by the Post-Dispatch at the Coliseum Tuesday night. The Washington avenue entrance, admitting to all parts of the building, will open at 7 p. m., and the display of bulletins and moving pictures will continue through the greater part of the night. Admission will be free. The hall will seat 10,000 persons.

Women with escorts are especially invited, and will have the preference in the filling of arena seats.

Outdoor exhibitions of bulletins and moving pictures will be given in front of the Coliseum, for the overflow gathering, in front of the Post-Dispatch office, and at the East St. Louis City Hall Park, adjoining the Arcade Building.

The Post-Dispatch received a definite announcement from Beekman Winthrop, acting Secretary of the Navy, that the United States Marine Band would not be permitted to fulfill the contract made with the Post-Dispatch in its behalf by the Radcliffe Musical Bureau. The announcement of the free concert in connection with the election returns display, and that of a matinee concert for school pupils and teachers, must therefore be cancelled. The Post-Dispatch greatly regrets the necessity of this cancellation. It is due to the efforts of the Musicians' Union and of Congressmen Bartholdt and Dyer. The invitations issued to public officials, party committeemen and certain others for box seats are still in effect, and all previously announced arrangements, except the band concert, will be carried out.

Notice to School Teachers and Pupils

THE Post-Dispatch greatly regrets that the matinee concert by the United States Marine Band at the Coliseum Tuesday, which the Post-Dispatch had arranged to give as a free treat for pupils and teachers of the public and parochial schools will not be given. The concert has been made impossible by orders from the Navy Department at Washington, prohibiting the band from playing under the auspices of the Post-Dispatch.

JURY GIVES $943 MORE THAN PIERCE ASKED FOR IN SUIT

Sought to Collect $26,714 From Former Employee, but Award Is $27,657.

The $29,000 suit of John P. Gruet against H. Clay Pierce, which has dragged along in the courts for more than six years, resulted in a default verdict for Pierce in Judge Fisher's court Monday.

Pierce's counter claim on a note signed by Gruet and A. M. Finley was allowed also by default. Henry S. Priest, of counsel for the defense, estimated the makers owed $28,715 to Pierce, but the jury said he had made a mistake in figuring the interest, and made it $27,657.

Immediate Trial Demanded. Pierce and his attorneys were in the court room when the case was called, but neither Gruet nor his attorney, Charles H. Routs, was there. The case had been set for trial several times but always had been postponed at the instance of one or the other of the principals. This time Priest asked that there be no further delay.

After dismissing Gruet's suit, Judge Fisher ordered a jury to be selected to pass on the counter claim. The original note was for $14,816.34. It was made in 1894.

Gruet was formerly confidential clerk of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. The first count in his petition asked $10,000 and interest on the ground that Pierce had failed to keep an agreement about raising his salary. He said that the oil company only paid $200 a year to him for his services when he demanded $10,000 and that Pierce agreed to make up the difference out of his private purse.

Charged Loss on Stock. The second count, which was also for $10,000 and interest, had to do with the transfer of a share of stock. This share Pierce induced him to turn over to another person, he alleged, for $100, although it turned out afterwards to be worth many times that. Pierce promised to protect him in this deal, according to his petition, but failed to make the loss good.

Gruet gave valuable assistance to the Texas authorities when they brought the action against the Waters-Pierce company, which drew a $1,780,000 fine for violation of the state anti-trust laws. In depositions for this suit was filed, H. Clay Pierce declared he had always been kind to Gruet and had tried to help him along in business.

Marine Band Not Allowed to Play at the Coliseum

The intention of the Post-Dispatch to employ any band for the election, and the Post-Dispatch engaged the Marine Band because it could not get the use of the Coliseum on election night any other way, as the Marine Band had engaged it to give a concert to watch admissions were to be charged, the Acting Secretary added that that made no difference; that to restrict the order now would endanger the interests of the band. He made the admission that he could not take any other course because of politics and that the justice of rescinding the order to Lieut. Santelmann was not considered.

The Acting Secretary lays the responsibility at the door of Lieut. Santelmann. He said that the Lieutenant as well as the managers of the Radcliffe Entertainment Bureau were given to understand when the band went on the road that they were to accept no engagement other than to give concerts at playhouses or similar places, for which admissions were to be charged.

Winthrop took the course he did in spite of the action Thursday of Admiral Philip Andrews, then the Acting Secretary of the Navy. Admiral Andrews told the correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Thursday that the Navy Department would not heed the protests "because there was no merit in them and because the members of the Marine Band are on the furlough and the Navy Department had no jurisdiction over them other than to recall them for regular duty."

Under the law, all enlisted men of the army, navy and marine corps, and this includes musicians, are allowed 30 days' furlough a year. Every year for the last three years the members of the Marine Band have taken their furloughs at the same time, and, as an organization, have gone out on a tour of the country, giving concerts at which they charged admissions. Under the law, they can do this. The only question about their going out thus is that they use the instruments which are furnished by the Government.

Free When on Furlough. This is the view which was taken by Admiral Andrews. He held that the band members of the service had the same right to earn a living by their profession as would a doctor, dentist or plumber. He was when on furlough or leave of absence. In other words, in the 30 days' furlough, granted to members of the Marine Corps they are free to do anything except to desert or anything which would bring disgrace or discredit on the service of which they are a unit.

When the Marine Band is on duty, they are subject to orders just as any other soldier, sailor or marine. In Washington when the band is on regular military duty its members make engagements and keep them. Units of the band play at the theaters and at other amusements and participate in parades and give concerts.

The musicians of Washington, through their local union, have protested against these outside engagements, but their protests so far have not been heeded by the Navy Department.

HOW TO SCRATCH YOUR BALLOT

If you wish to scratch a candidate, DRAW A LINE THROUGH HIS NAME and write on the blank line just below it the name of the man for whom you want to vote. There is a blank line beneath the name of every candidate.

The above sample shows part of a Republican ballot scratched and marked as it should be by a voter who wants to substitute the names of the Democratic candidates for the offices indicated.

To vote FOR the adoption of an amendment to the State Constitution or the City Charter you should SCRATCH the word NO.

Follow These Directions and Your Vote Will Count

POLLs open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.
Early voting is advocated by Election Commissioners. Nobody not inside of polling place with a ballot in his hands will be permitted to vote after 7 p. m.

Voters will receive from election officials six tickets: Republican, Democratic, Progressive, Socialist, Prohibition and Socialist Labor.

Amendments to the State Constitution are printed on a separate sheet. Three propositions are printed at foot of regular ballots: 1. To increase salaries of members of Municipal Assembly to $10,000 a year. 2. To make initiative and referendum applicable to city affairs. 3. To issue $2,750,000 in bonds to complete the free bridge. To vote for any of these propositions, scratch "No." To vote against them, scratch "Yes."

To vote a straight ticket, select the ticket of the party you wish to vote for, scratch the "Yes" or "No" on the three propositions at the foot of the ticket, fold it and hand it to the election judges.

B. Be sure to see that the initials of election judges appear on the ballot you use; otherwise it will not be counted.

The names of the presidential candidates do not appear on the ticket. If you wish to vote against Taft, and for the rest of the Republican candidates, scratch the names of the 13 electors from your ticket and write in the names of the electors representing the candidate you wish to vote for. If you write in the Democratic electors the vote will go to Wilson.

To vote against any candidate on your party ticket, scratch off his name and write in the blank space below the name of the candidate you wish to vote for.

To vote for any of the constitutional amendments on a separate sheet, scratch "No." To vote against them, scratch "Yes." Remember that a two-thirds majority of all votes cast in the city election will be necessary to carry the bridge bond issue. Failure to vote on this proposition is equivalent to voting against the bonds.

Swingley Calls the Berlin Hotel a "Legal Firetrap"

stairways were narrow and cramped, but they were within the law. Building Commissioner McKelvey is withholding permits in the case of new buildings which have such narrow halls and stairways, but he has no law behind him in doing so. There is no law to go to court probably could get a court order compelling him to issue a permit for one more legal fire trap.

Law Required Only a Rope. "No outside stairway was required by the law on the Berlin. All that was required was a rope in each room, and the ropes were there, but what good is a rope? What would come would slide down a rope without endangering her life?" The whole theory of the present law, which puts big boarding houses and three-story family hotels in the same class with private homes as to fire protection, is wrong. There is no similarity between conditions in a boarding house and a home, in case of fire.

There should be a new State statute, applying to all buildings housing more than a certain number of persons—say 20. The law should require halls and stairways of a certain width, and outside fire escapes, accessible from all parts of the building. And the new law should be retroactive, otherwise it would apply only to new buildings, and would give no protection to the great majority of dwellers in such places.

Building Commissioner McKelvey endorsed Chief Swingley's statement that the present State law was worthless in dealing with such danger as that which existed at the Berlin.

The law which prevailed up to 1907.

he said, "provided that buildings three stories or more in height must have outside fire escapes. The Legislature—for what reason I cannot imagine—amended this law in 1907 so as to require only ropes in rooms for buildings 'three stories or less' in height."

McKelvey said that, as Swingley expressed it, he was obliged to "bluff" buildings to get safe conditions even in new buildings.

He said one of the things he was requiring in new buildings, as a condition for issuing a permit, was that there should be an exit for every 200 square feet of floor space. This requirement also rested on a "bluff," he said, and would not stand a test in court.

TURKS APPEAL TO POWERS TO BRING PEACE IN BALKANS

Porte Seeks Mediation When Victorious Bulgars Are Almost at the Gates of Capital and Army Is in Flight.

Allies Expected to Insist on Making Their Own Terms With Foes, 40,000 of Whom Fell in Battle.

Terrific Slaughter Is Kept Up as Flower of Sultan's 200,000 Force Retreats in Two Columns.

By Associated Press.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 1.—The Porte has applied to the powers for mediation with a view to the cessation of hostilities and for the negotiation of peace.

Application has been made to the embassies here and by circular to the Ottoman representatives in the European capitals.

Allies Likely to Want to Dictate Peace Terms at Constantinople.
LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Turkish Ambassador here has been directed by the Ottoman Government to inform Great Britain of Turkey's willingness to receive assistance in bringing about a suspension of hostilities with a view of arriving at a peace settlement.

Military experts here declare that with its army of 200,000 men defeated and fleeing in two demoralized columns to Constantinople, the Turk is forced to sue for peace to save his capital.

The Balkan nations and Greece, now that their armies are almost at the gates of Constantinople, are persistent in their determination that Turkey must arrange directly with them the terms of peace without the intervention of the European powers. This attitude is emphasized in a statement from official sources which says:

"The Turkish proposal of peace is satisfactory insofar as it shows a desire to prevent further bloodshed. As regards foreign intervention however, there seems to be no chance of the Balkan states listening to any foreign counsel while treating for the arrangement of conditions of peace. These must be settled between the Balkan states and Turkey direct.

Entire Campaign Prearranged.
"It may at this stage be declared that the whole campaign was prearranged and has so far been carried out entirely in accordance with the program. For a considerable time an officer of the Great military staff, Col. Doumales, was engaged at Sofia preparing the military details, while the political program was largely, if not entirely, the work of Premier Venizelos of Greece.

"The union of the Balkan states at this moment is more close, hearty and intimate than it has ever been. For it has been welded by blood and common sacrifice. There is not the least danger that any disagreement as to the division of territory or the positions of the frontiers will disturb it. It may be assumed that inasmuch as the details of the whole campaign were arranged for the greatest care the same procedure will be followed, both at the conclusion of hostilities and subsequent political considerations."

Correspondent Describes Battle.
Martin Donohoe, in a dispatch to the Daily Chronicle, from Constantinople, Romania, describing the battle at Lule-Burgas, says:

"The Turkish army suffered an appalling defeat. It was the most complete military disaster since Mukden and the greatest debacle since Sedan. Forty thousand of the flower of the Turkish troops have fallen, while Abdullah himself narrowly escaped the fate of 75 per cent of his artillery, who were made captives. His men seemed to melt away suddenly like snow before the summer sun. Brigades dissolved into regiments, regiments into companies, companies became small groups until cohesion disappeared and demoralization became complete.

"By handfulls the army has found its way back to Chorio, the Bulgarian artillery cruelly harassing the men, moving them down in thousands."

Artillery Forced to Quit.
After describing the Bulgarians' opening operations of Tuesday Donohoe proceeds:

"Throughout the terrible fighting the superiority of the Bulgarian artillery was pronounced. The Turks were unable to stand the murderous fire and withdrew slowly, the gunners being dead and the majority of their horses killed. The artillery was forced to abandon many guns to the enemy.

"The Bulgarians, who displayed extraordinary energy, pressed forward and determined to make the most of their advantage. By afternoon the Bulgarians had shelled the Turks out of Lule-Burgas. Having effectually silenced the Turks' fire, they launched an infantry attack which storming the town at the point of the bayonet.

WOMAN KNOCKED SENSELESS BY BURGLARS, THEN BURNED BY LAMP

MRS. NELLIE REEB...

Allah! swart like a tornado upon the exposed infamy.

"No one could be expected to withstand such an onslaught. The Bulgars turned and the Turkish cavalry simply rode them down, causing extraordinary havoc.

"The Turkish artillery from the beginning had been poorly supplied with ammunition and what they had practically was all expended in the fight of the morning. Now many gunners stood around the empty limbers with folded arms, unable to reply to the Bulgarian fire. They awaited death, which came swiftly, in most cases, with true Ottoman courage.

Men Fall in Hundreds.
"Along the whole Turkish front the troops were harassed by a terrible fire. As time went on it became simply carnage. Men were falling by the hundred. The morale of the troops completely was destroyed by this appalling ordeal of shell fire.

"For perhaps an hour the retreat was carried out in good order, but subsequently, pressed by the mass behind, the retreat was a disorderly rout. The baggage, guns and all military stores fell into the hands of the pursuing Bulgarians.

ENGLISH IN RACE TO DARDANELLES

Third Battle Squadron Sent and British Intend to Take Large Part in War Events.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch Copyright, 1912, by Press Publishing Co. (N.Y.)
LONDON, Nov. 4.—"Do you believe in the concert of Europe?" was the question put by a friend to First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill.

"I believe more in the British fleet," is the answer attributed to the Naval Minister.

Today's news shows that the British Navy is intended to play a large part in the events at Constantinople. The third battleship squadron, consisting of the King Edward VII, Hibernia, Africa, Britannia and Commonwealth and New Zealand, the most powerful battleships next to the dreadnaughts in the navy, together with the protected cruisers Dartmouth, Barbham, Medina and Weymouth, are now steaming from Gibraltar and Malta toward the Dardanelles under forced draft, ostensibly to protect the British residents in Constantinople, but really to be on the spot to protect British interests should the concert of Europe break up.

WOMAN WHO ONCE CAUGHT BURGLAR SAVES A PROWLER

When Woman Roomer Insisted on Shooting, Former Post-mistress Gives Man Warning.

DOG ROUTS 2 BURGLARS

Woman Knocked Senseless Is Burned by Oil Lamp Intruders Overturned.

Mrs. Elizabeth Browning, 46 years old, of 4033 Delmar boulevard, who once captured a postoffice robber by keeping him covered with a revolver more than an hour, took pity on a burglar who got into her home at 2:30 a. m. Monday and refused to let one of her roomers shoot him.

The burglar awakened Mrs. Browning making a noise in the basement and after telephoning to the police she got her revolver, intending to shoot the prowler. Her nerve failed her, however, and she went upstairs and awoke Mrs. Belle Fornes to do the shooting.

Mrs. Fornes was willing, but when Mrs. Browning saw the man, unaware of his peril, standing near the back door, she refused to let him be harmed and tapped on the window to warn him.

As the burglar fled through the yard Mrs. Fornes raised the window and fired one shot at him without effect.

Mrs. Browning said she recognized the man as one who came to the house Sunday afternoon, pretending that he wished to rent a room, and who asked many questions and took many notes about the arrangement of the house and the number of occupants.

Mrs. Browning for six years was post-mistress of Bryan, Ill. she said, turning to the office late on night to get something she had forgotten, she found a man there rifling the mail. She managed to reach her revolver before he saw her. Being too tender-hearted to shoot him, she merely held him a prisoner until help arrived, more than an hour later.

Dog Routs Burglars After They Had Attacked Woman.
A fox terrier at 3:30 a. m. Sunday routed two burglars who had invaded Lamb's Inn, 3434 Olive street, and laid rescuers to Mrs. Nellie Reeb, who had been knocked senseless by the burglar, bound, gagged and left in such a position that an oil lamp she had been carrying burned away part of her clothing.

The barking of the terrier awakened Mrs. Reeb, who, with her husband, Christopher Reeb, occupies a room on the second floor. Taking the lamp, she went downstairs and back to the rear of the hall, intending to enter a small shop where Reeb manufactures artificial limbs and where the dog was locked up. As she was about to open the door she was struck on the back of the head.

When Mrs. Reeb recovered consciousness, she was lying on the floor of the shop, her hands bound with a piece of clothes line, an apron tied over her face, part of another apron stuffed in her mouth and a gag, and a square foot of her night dress burned away by flames from the overturned lamp. She said she heard one of the men say, "That dog bit me," just before they disappeared through the rear door.

After putting the burglars to flight, the dog went upstairs, awakened Reeb and led him to the shop. Mrs. Reeb was not seriously burned and the injury to her head is not considered dangerous. F. C. Griffin, manager of the inn, said he believed the burglars were looking for money when Mrs. Reeb appeared and spoiled their plans. Nothing was stolen.

KEY THAT TICKED OFF '92 NEWS IN WILSON'S HOME

Same Instrument That Told Cleveland of Victory Will Give Returns to Governor.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Gov. Wilson will receive the election returns tomorrow night through the same telegraph instrument that ticked off victory to Grover Cleveland in 1892. The Governor today expressed again his desire to go to bed early tomorrow night and hear the full returns the next day.

Commodore E. C. Benedict, a life-long friend of Grover Cleveland, sent a messenger to Gov. Wilson today with the historic instrument and the nominee had it installed.

"Commodore Benedict tells me that he and Mr. Cleveland were playing cribbage the night of the election," Gov. Wilson said, "and Mr. Cleveland complained that the ticking of the telegraph instrument annoyed him and interrupted the game."

The Governor will have with him at his home tomorrow only the members of his family and his younger brother, Joseph R. Wilson.

"The case is made up, and it is not necessary to say anything further," was the Governor's only pre-election comment today.

4 O'FALLON P. O. ROBBERS FOUND IN TAYLORVILLE JAIL

Four of the six prisoners now held in jail at Taylorville, Ill., as implicated in the killing of an unidentified man in a saloon there a week ago last Friday, have been identified by United States Postoffice Inspector Owen P. Clark of the Chicago division as the same men who on the night of Oct. 9, in sight of a score of citizens robbed the postoffice at O'Fallon, Ill., and after cracking the safe escaped with $700 in cash and stamps.

The men identified by Inspector Clark are: Joe Backburn, Fred Allison, alias Cincinnati Whitey, George Shea, alias Syracuse Blackey, and William Hurley. A. D. Bensen of the St. Louis Postoffice assisted the Chicago inspector in his work by detailing to him the circumstances of the O'Fallon robbery.

Photographs identified. Clark obtained photographs of the men imprisoned at Taylorville and took them to O'Fallon where a number of people who had been in the saloon where the killing took place on the day of the robbery. Some old coins and a revolver found upon one of the prisoners were identified by the Postmaster at O'Fallon as having been in the postoffice the night it was burglarized.

A car conductor on the East St. Louis & Suburban line recognized the pictures of the men in jail as the four men he had carried from O'Fallon to French Village.

Quarrelled Over Money.
The clerk who led the inspectors to suspect the men in the Taylorville shooting might have been connected with the postoffice robbery was that the fight that resulted in the killing was occasioned by the men quarrelling over money they claimed should be divided.

MAN FOUND IN TENT WITH 7 AX WOUNDS

Worker Near Pacific, Mo., Declines to Say Why He Was Attacked or by Whom.

Alex Sanger, a sand worker, 30 years old, lay in a critical condition Monday at his home in a tent a mile from Pacific, on the Meramec River, as the result of seven wounds said by county officials to have been inflicted with an ax. He declined to say who had attacked him.

In response to a telephone message that a man's head was being cut off, Deputy Sheriff Sturdy of Valley Park hastened to the tent Sunday evening. He was met at the door by Mrs. Sanger, apparently a woman of 23 years, who refused to admit him, he said, until he showed his badge. Two children, about 7 and 9 years old, cowered in a corner of the tent, and on a cot lay Sanger.

"We had a little rumper here," Sanger said, according to Sturdy, in explaining how he was injured. He refused, however, to tell who attacked him or to go to hospital, and a physician said he would not prosecute anybody if an arrest were made.

Dr. John Williams of Pacific told Sturdy he had been called to attend Sanger and found his condition critical. He said it required 10 stitches to close a wound on Sanger's right arm above the elbow.

NEW METHODS OF TREATING CONSUMPTION

No Longer Necessary for Patients to Seek Dry Climates.

After a number of years of successfully fighting Consumption in the various countries of Europe, there has been a revolution in the treatment of this disease which bids fair to take the lead in the war on the Great White Plague.

This preparation, which is called "Sirolo," is a new method of treating Consumption, and obtains just as remarkable results in the patient seeking a dry climate, and the medical profession in our own country has also taken it into their own hands. You can learn more about Sirolo by addressing the Sirolo Co., 238 West Broadway, New York City.

Dr. J. E. Johnson, D. D. S., of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I have used Sirolo with considerable success."—ADV.

FOREIGN VOTERS, BUREAU REPORTS, ARE FOR WILSON

Merits of Democratic Campaign
Were Published in Many Languages.

Woodrow Wilson is a Munka, an Imgracya, a Radnik, a Delnik, a Famerzy and even a Robinetzy. At least that is what the Foreign Bureau of the Democratic National Committee located in St. Louis, calls the Democratic nominee for President in literature it has distributed during the past month.

A Croatian, a Pole, a Slavonian or a Hungarian would applaud delightedly the orator who would hurl these titles at the Sage of Princeton, because in their respective languages the queer sounding words are complimentary terms.

The St. Louis committee in charge of the local headquarters of the foreign vote, led by the late President of the local committee, Col. M. S. Selph, Charles P. Higgins and Owen Miller had printed in the native language of every nation that has a representation of any consequence in the Middle West circulars telling them why they should vote for Wilson.

Particular attention was devoted to the German, Hungarian, Jewish, Slavonian, Polish, Bohemian, Italian, Greek, Syrian, Croatian and French voters, and each nationality was canvassed by a special committee.

The report of the local committee to the national headquarters, filed Saturday, paid this compliment to the naturalized voter:

"The committee found the foreign born voter equal in intelligence, education and patriotism for his adopted country to the native son and found that they were eager for information and enlightenment on the issues of the campaign."

The report says that 75 per cent of the naturalized vote in St. Louis will be cast for Wilson and predicts that he will have a majority of several thousand votes in the city.

WILLIAM D. BECKER.

Mr. Becker, Republican candidate for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, has been active by ever three hundred of the most prominent members of the Bar in St. Louis. He is of German-American descent, is a graduate of Harvard University, of the Law Department of Washington University, is in the prime of his life and usefulness, has had an extensive and varied experience at the Bar, is industrious and conscientious, and particularly fitted for judicial work. He stands for the decision of cases on their merits and not upon mere technicalities that do not affect the justice of the matter. He has never before assisted to office of any kind, but has always been active in civil, political and social matters. Nothing can be said against his character or his qualifications. He has earned the respect and confidence of the people and the voters will make no mistake in electing him to that high judicial position. ADVERTISEMENT.

Household and Provisions Gone.

Mrs. William W. Ramsey of 1328 Good-fellow avenue Sunday reported the loss of a household as well as a 24-pound sack of flour, five pounds of sugar, one pound of bacon, a pound of lard, two pounds of ham and a pound of coffee.

Diamond Necklace Stolen.

The theft of a diamond, platinum set necklace valued at $175 was reported to the police by Mrs. Max Sandberg of 6638 Cebenne avenue Sunday.

Why You Should Bathe Internally

Under our present mode of living, Nature unassisted can not dispose of all the waste. This waste sends its poisons into the system, through the blood circulation, and brings on countless ills.

That's the reason a physician's first step in illness is to give a laxative.

Physicians generally, in order to stop this accumulation of waste, are now advising the use of "J. B. L. Cascade," Nature's cure for Constipation, which aids the lower intestine of all waste and keeps it healthy without drugging.

It is now shown by all Judges & Dolph drug stores.

List of Nominees to Be Voted for in the Election Tomorrow Who Should Be Defeated.

Take This With You to the Polls

HIRAM LLOYD, Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Because, as floor reader of the Republican organization in the lower house of the State Legislature two years ago, he led the fight against the Municipal Courts bill for St. Louis. This measure was designed by the St. Louis Bar Association to eliminate graft and other evils of the present justice of the peace system, and to afford justice to poor litigants. It was proposed to establish a system of municipal courts to be elected by the voters at large which would remove the influence of petty political bosses.

Lloyd engineered the trading of votes with county members of the legislature to insure the defeat of this judicial reform.

HOWARD SIDENER, Republican candidate for Circuit Attorney.

Because his dereliction in the office of Prosecuting Attorney was such as to call forth censure by grand jury in a special mid-term report, on May 8, 1912, in that report the jury declared that Sidener's office showed too much "leniency" in the prosecution of the notorious lid club owners. Many of these cases, the jury reported, were dismissed on payment of costs and arbitrarily "soiled" the process.

Whereas convictions usually were obtained when the cases were tried.

One of the most flagrant instances was the freeing by Sidener of a political worker who had been arrested by the police on a charge of violating the dramsop laws in the operation of a lid club. Without consulting the police, who considered the evidence against the defendant "soiled" by Sidener, he entered a nolle prosequi; the grand jury then returned a verdict on the evidence gathered by the police, and again Sidener nolle prosequed the case.

Sidener is receiving the support of the gang element in both parties.

GEORGE P. WEINBRENNER, Republican candidate for Public Administrator.

Because his political affiliations with and obligations to Charles (Cap) Trol, brother of Public Administrator Trol, lift him for this office. "Cap" Trol is Republican boss of the Ninth Ward, former lid club proprietor and former officer of handbooks in East St. Louis.

BEN F. CLARK, Democratic candidate for Court of Criminal Correction.

Because his record, which defeated him overwhelmingly when he ran for Circuit Attorney in 1892, marks him as unfit for the important office of Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction. Clark was opposed in 1892 on the ground that while acting as City Attorney he showed partiality to defendant gamblers. It was revealed also that he had been fined $50 by Judge Henry D. Laughlin in the Court of Criminal Correction for unprofessional conduct as an attorney.

THERON CATLIN, Republican candidate for Congress in Eleventh District.

Because, as a member of Congress he lined up with the stand-pat reactionary element of the Republican party in voting against tariff revision bills to reduce the cost of living and is now advocating a perpetuation of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law with its highly protective duties on the necessities of life. While a member of the State Legislature in 1907, he voted against the public utility bill to regulate the rates and service of public service corporations. Two years ago he ran for Congress in the Eleventh District and was elected on the face of the returns over his Democratic opponent, Pat Gill. Gill filed contest proceedings. In July last Congress unseated Catlin and seated Gill on the ground that the amount of money spent in promoting his candidacy exceeded the amount permitted by the corrupt practices act.

RICHARD BARTHOLOTT, Republican candidate for Congress in Tenth District.

Because, throughout his 20 years' service in Congress he has worked and voted persistently to prevent a reduction of tariff duties for the purpose of reducing the high cost of living. In the Fifty-eighth, Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses, he stood shoulder to shoulder with Cannon, the Czar-like Speaker of the House, Progressive Republican as he was called, and his methods and Bartholott's support never wavered.

L. C. DYER, Republican candidate for Congress in Twelfth District.

Because he is seeking re-election as a member of Congress on the record of his allegiance to the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, with its highly protective duties on the necessities of life. He voted with the other Republican Congressmen from St. Louis against all legislation designed to reduce the cost of living. More than 50 of Dyer's Republican associates in the House supported these measures.

FRANK WARNER, Republican candidate for State Senator, 29th District.

Because, as a member of the State public utilities bill; at the 1911 session he voted "No" on the municipal court bill.

JOHN MORONEY, Democratic candidate for the Legislature, Third District.

Because, as a member of the State Legislature in 1907, he voted against the bill empowering St. Louis to establish a Public Service Commission for the regulation of rates and service of public franchise corporations. Formerly a saloon keeper at Sixth and Walnut streets; he lost his license by keeping an alleged disorderly place.

ROBERT PAULUS, Republican candidate for State Senator, 30th District.

Because, as a member of the State Legislature two years ago, he followed the machine leadership of Hiram Lloyd in voting against the municipal courts bill.

ARTHUR KRAMER, Republican candidate for State Senator, 31st District.

Because, as a member of the State Legislature two years ago, he followed the machine leadership of Hiram Lloyd in voting against the municipal courts bill.

JOSEPH BROGAN, Democratic candidate for State Senator, 33rd District.

Because, as a State Senator, he voted two years ago against the municipal courts bill.

OLIVER T. REMMERS, Republican candidate for Legislature, First District.

Because, as a member of the State Legislature two years ago, he followed the machine leadership of Hiram Lloyd and voted against the Municipal Courts bill.

CHARLES ENYART, Republican candidate for Legislature, Third District.

Because, while known to the police as the "policy king" of St. Louis, he was convicted twice on charges of operating policy dens; as been arrested frequently on charges of disturbing the peace, selling liquor without a license, resisting arrest and once on suspicion of robbery.

HENRY C. ERMAN, Republican candidate for Legislature, First District.

Because, as a member of the State Legislature two years ago, he followed the machine leadership of Hiram Lloyd and voted against the Municipal Courts bill.

ALFRED METZGER, Republican candidate for Legislature, Fourth District.

Because, as a member of the State Legislature two years ago, he followed the machine leadership of Hiram Lloyd and voted against the Municipal Courts bill.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded If It Fails.

This recipe makes a pint of cough syrup, and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, croup, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in quassia and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—ADV.

CAP. TROLL LINES UP FORCES FOR HOWARD SIDENER

Former Lid Club "King" Orders
Workers to Beat Harvey at Any Cost.

Despite the opposition of the hoodlum element, Democratic leaders Monday expressed the opinion that Thomas B. Harvey, nominee for Circuit Attorney, will lead the candidates on the Democratic ticket in Tuesday's election.

In the extreme North and South St. Louis wards and the West End, Harvey is expected to run at least 4000 votes ahead of his ticket.

In the lower wards, the Democratic managers expect Harvey will hold his own, with only the slightest defection in the Third and Fifth wards. Committeeman Rex of the Twenty-eighth Ward says that a house-to-house canvass just made indicates Harvey will carry that bailiwick by from 1500 to 1800 plurality.

Charles (Cap) Trol, "Cosmo" Heb and a score of owners of lid clubs are making a desperate fight against Harvey in the Eighth, Ninth and Tenth wards.

The Trol interests declare that Sidener will be put over in spite of the so-called independent voters. At precinct committee meetings held in various parts of South St. Louis Sunday night, Trol's lieutenants passed the word down the line to save Sidener above every other candidate on the Republican ticket.

There is fear among the Republicans that the entire city ticket will be defeated because of the astonishing strength shown by the Bull Moose ticket. It has been learned, too, that fully 80 per cent of the Roosevelt vote will support the Bull Moose ticket in its entirety.

The Progressive leaders say they will be no break anywhere in their lines. Gang Supporting Warner, Too.

Frank Warner, Republican nominee for State Senator in the Twenty-ninth District, is another candidate whom the "gang" has singled out for its support. Warner is a former bookmaker and a follower of the old Ziegenhain machine.

He was indicted in 1901 on a charge of counterfeiting city license tags. The indictment was dismissed on a technicality. Warner's senatorial district runs from the river to the city limits on the west and from the city limits on the south to Maywood avenue. A considerable percentage of the residents in this district own their homes. Ordinarily the district is 5000 or 6000 Republican, but well-informed judges of the situation declare that Warner will be defeated.

"The great mass of voters in South and Southwest St. Louis are tired of the Warner-Trol-Krats-Weeke combination," said a Republican Monday. "The sooner the 'boys' realize that the Sideners and the Warners do not reflect

I Asked a Conductor

"Why is it that ninety-five per cent of your brother conductors have gray hair notwithstanding the fact that a large proportion of them are young men?"

"I presume you expect me to say years of service and responsibility," he replied. "Foolish questions, however, and trying to be a living encyclopedia, are the real reasons."

"At first I didn't mind, but as weeks became months and months years, the foolish questions became a heavy load, especially after my transfer to a celebrated scenic run."

"My hair surely would be white by this time if it hadn't been for the wife. One night, upon my return home, I was greeted by the sounds of a beautiful waltz, and for a moment I was dumfounded. When I entered the parlor, however, the mystery was explained, for my wife was playing the new Kimball Player-Piano."

"Now the click of the wheels merges into a Sousa March or the fascinating swing of a popular song, and foolish questions are forgotten."

The Kimball Player-Piano has the essentials necessary to reproduce hand-played music.

This instrument plays the full scale, 88 notes—plays any make of 88-note. It has a full, round, rich, mellow, singing tone—selected materials, best workmanship, roll-guiding device, Acme melode soloist and ten exclusive improvements.

the choice of the greater body of Republican voters the better it will be for them.

South St. Louis is tired of voting for "any old candidate" just so long as he wears the Republican label.

In the Third Legislative District the toughest element, aided by a few ex-Democratic politicians, are whooping it up for Charles Enyart, Republican nominee for the Legislature. Enyart is sure he will be elected. His district runs from Chouteau avenue to Tyler street and from the river to Jefferson avenue. The Post-Dispatch has called attention to Enyart's police record, including his conviction twice on charges of operating policy games here. Enyart's friends say the Republican voters are going to stand by his candidacy and see to it that he is elected.

Old Policy Men for Sidener.

Enyart's followers are putting in hard looks for the Sidener candidacy. It is recalled that in the old days when policy flourished in St. Louis, Sidener was the legal adviser for the "Little Joe" Policy Co. and the New York Policy Co. The New York company had an income of $1000 a day. After it had flourished here nearly two years, Sidener announced that public sentiment against the gamblers was so strong they had decided to go out of business.

George Riechmann, Republican boss of the Third Ward, who is Sidener's chief booster in North St. Louis, was a pal of Enyart, who used Riechmann's sal-loom for his policy operations.

The fact that Joe Slippy, Frank Warner, Capt. Trol, Harry Fisher, Ford Warner and other former bookmakers are working for Sidener, has encouraged the "gang" to renew its efforts to defeat Harvey.

Judge Harvey is not worried over the situation. At a meeting Sunday of 100 Democratic representatives from each of the 44 election precincts of St. Louis, Judge Harvey declared that he will be elected by an overwhelming majority.

The cheering in response to his remarks on the circuit attorneyship fight continued for 15 minutes.

"I propose if elected," said the Judge, "to do my duty fearlessly, fairly and without regard to the crooked gamblers who are opposing my election. Here and there may be found a worker who, in order not to vote for me, will vote the entire Republican ticket. I hope that will not be the case. I do not want any other candidate on the ticket sacrificed because of opposition to me. If there is any man who honestly believes I should not hold this office let him scratch my name and write in that of Mr. Sidener."

"If I go down in defeat I do not want to carry my party associates with me. The issues are made. It is up to the people to say who shall be their Circuit Attorney."

Republican leaders, in discussing the circuit attorneyship contest, admit, in public addresses, that Judge Harvey

"probably is an able lawyer" than Sidener," but that is no reason, they add, why Sidener should be scratched for Harvey.

WOMAN IS FOUND DEAD

Police Believe Stain on Broom Was Caused by Hemorrhage.

Police investigation into the death of Ethel Tremaine, 21 years old, satisfied the Central District police death was due to hemorrhage of the lungs. Her husband, Thomas J. Tremaine, 30 years old, of 815 South Sixth street, said by the police to be a cocaine user and vendor, however was held as a witness for the coroner.

The woman was found dead in bed at 3 a. m. Monday. Tremaine told the police he awoke, found his wife struggling for life and ran out for policemen. They summoned Dr. C. E. Coffey of 704 South Broadway. The woman died an hour later. A red-stained broom, found on the bed where the woman lay, caused suspicion, but it was decided the stain was caused by hemorrhage.

The woman was to have appeared in Police Court Monday morning on a charge of violating the ordinances. She was arrested Saturday and held till Sunday. The police say she was a cocaine user.

7000 PERSONS OBSERVE A LUTHERAN FESTIVAL

Children's Choir of 3000 Voices and Addresses Were Program's Features.

Members of the Evangelical Lutheran churches of St. Louis celebrated the Festival of the Reformation Sunday afternoon at the Coliseum. An audience of 7000 men, women and children assembled. There was a mixed choir of 775 voices and a children's choir of 3000 from the Lutheran parochial schools and Sunday schools. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Francis Pieper, president of Concordia Theological Seminary, and the Rev. William Dallman of Milwaukee.

The Rev. Mr. Pieper said: "Lutherans are loyal Americans. They believe that civil governments are a divine ordinance for the welfare and protection of men in their secular interests. They hold that the State is an institution distinct from the church, and that both institutions must be forever kept separate and distinct, that the state must not legislate for the church, nor the church for the state."

The Rev. S. C. Schmidt of Holy Cross Church said prayer and read the scripture lesson. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. M. S. Sommer of Grace Church. The committee in charge of the celebration consisted of the Rev. Richard Kretschmar, the Rev. William Hallenberg and Otto J. Reiser.

KANSAS STOPS THE SPREAD OF TYPHOID BY WATER TESTS

Movable Hypochloride Plant Sent to Towns Where Supply Is Polluted.

DEATH RATE IS REDUCED

Emergency Service Furnished Free by State Prevents Epidemics Once Common.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 4.—The State of Kansas has found a way to stop the spread of typhoid fever in the towns and cities of the State when the cause of the disease has been traced to pollution of the city water supply. The State Board of Health and the State University have built a movable hypochloride plant for temporary installation whenever the tests of the water indicate pollution as the cause.

The plant has been unusually successful and it is believed that the use of the hypochloride plant has been responsible for most of the reduction in the deaths from typhoid fever in the last two years. The vital statistics department of the State Board of Health has the figures to show that during 1911 there were over 600 deaths from this disease, while during the present year there have been but 433 and the season for the prevalence of the disease is practically ended now so that the total will not exceed 450 or 500 for the entire year.

The Board of Health receives a report every month on the deaths in every city in the State. This report shows the cause for each death. Whenever the vital statistics report of a city shows an unusual number of deaths from typhoid fever an expert sanitarian from the State University is sent to the city on the first test. He first takes samples of the city water and sends these to the university for analysis. Then he walks over the water supply system, and over all the water shed from which the water is taken, closely inspecting the ground and surroundings to determine any possible causes of pollution.

Tests Made Quickly.

Within two days after the samples of water are taken the contents of the water are known by the chemists and a report shows whether or not the water is polluted in any way and whether or not it carries any typhoid bacteria. If the water is not polluted the source of infection lies in the milk or in some local condition that is run down by the expert. But if the water shows even very small number of typhoid bacteria the movable hypochloride plant is shipped on the same train with the report of the water analysis.

The hypochloride plant consists of three large tanks, each easily taken apart and shipped in crates and the three can be set up in an hour. The tanks are set up just outside the city pumping plant and the mains cut and run into the tanks. In the first one the water is treated to remove whatever dirt may be in it and in the second the water is given a hypochloride of lime bath and then it passes into the third tank, where the lime is precipitated and then the water goes into the water mains clear and free from all bacteria. The water is absolutely sterile when it leaves the third tank and if the right proportions of the hypochloride of lime are used there is no taste or odor. The amount of hypochloride to be used depends upon the turbidity of the water and the mineral content. The average is about 20 pounds for each million gallons of water. It costs about 8 cents a pound in quantities, so its use is not expensive to any city.

Plant Is a Success.

The State furnishes the plant free of all charge, and the sanitation work does not cost the city a penny. The plant is installed, and the water employees shown how to handle it without cost, and then the State takes the plant down when its work is completed, and the source of pollution removed.

The plant has been used several times at Lawrence, and now a permanent hypochloride plant has been installed. At Norton two slaughter houses were found to be polluting the water supply of the city so the State's movable plant was installed for a few weeks until the slaughter houses were moved away, the ground cleaned, and tests of the water showed that it did not contain any dangerous bacteria. The plant was installed last week at Caldwell to be used temporarily, and until the source of pollution of the water supply there can be removed, a big barn lot on a hill overlooking the valley from which the water was taken.

NONE EVER MORE FIT THAN WILSON, BRYAN DECLARES

Nebraskan Writes That the Governor Has Moral Courage and Is on the People's Side—Draws Pen Picture of Leaders in Review of the Campaign.

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN.
(Copyright, 1912, by the Central Press Association.)

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 3. THE campaign is closed. The verdict is made up; on Nov. 5 the jury will announce it. The choice of a President will be made between three candidates; either Mr. Wilson will be elected for a single term—his platform pledging him to one term—or Mr. Taft will be elected for a second term, or Mr. Roosevelt for a third term.

But in presenting a brief pen picture of them and the things for which they stand, I prefer to follow a different though not less logical order. First, let us consider Mr. Taft as the President who is, then Mr. Roosevelt as the President who has been, and then Mr. Wilson as the President who will be.

Mr. Taft has occupied the White House for nearly four years, and he has not supporters with a rapidity seldom ever equaled. It is not likely that half of those who voted for him before will vote for him now, and he has not made friends among the opposition.

Why this extraordinary revolt against him? There are a number of reasons that might be given, but one is sufficient. He is constitutionally distrustful of the people. He does not have confidence in their capacity for self-government, and he does not take their side. The people are marching on, double quick, while he stands still.

Didn't Take People's Side.

The people are about to secure the direct election of senators after a struggle of 20 years. He has never spoken

Final Predictions By Leaders of Three Parties

About the only point on which the three campaign managers agree is that the vote tomorrow will be the largest ever cast.

WILLIAM F. MCCOMB, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee:

GOV. WILSON, will be elected President by the largest majority ever known in the Electoral College, and by the largest popular plurality of history. I do not concede one state to any other candidate, and believe that Gov. Wilson has a good chance to carry every state.

CHARLES D. HILLES, Chairman of the Republican National Committee:

"President Taft will be re-elected. He will receive the support of the reliably Republican states, which alone would give him a majority in the Electoral College. He will also receive the votes of a number of the so-called doubtful states."

SENATOR JOSEPH M. DIXON, Chairman of the Progressive National Committee:

"Roosevelt will carry 25 states and will have a total of 297 electoral votes. Wilson will carry 13 states and will have 130 electoral votes. Ten states, having a total of 104 electoral votes, are doubtful. All indications point to a landslide to Roosevelt in many states not included in the 25 which are certain to go for him."

Predictions for Missouri

D. C. McCLUNG, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee:

WILSON, Marshall, Major and the entire Democratic State ticket will carry in Missouri by a plurality ranging from 100,000 to 150,000. We will elect 15 Congressmen, and possibly the entire delegation of 16. The next Legislature will be overwhelmingly Democratic.

POLITE ELVINS, Chairman of the Republican State Committee:

"Any attempt to give figures in this campaign would be mere guesswork. Our reports show that the Republican ticket will receive the greater part of the 'silent vote,' and it is correct we will carry Missouri by a handsome plurality."

B. F. BEAZELL, Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the Progressive State Committee:

"Our reports indicate that the Missouri vote will be cast about as follows: Roosevelt, 312,000; Wilson, 200,000; Taft, 92,000; Debs, 13,000, and Chafin 7000."

out in favor of the reform but once, and that was in 1908, and then he only expressed an inclination toward it. Why did he not take the people's side in this issue earlier, and why did he not use his influence to help when he did express himself as inclined toward the reform?

Why has he not helped the people to purify politics? Why has he objected to publicity before the election, as to campaign contributions, and although the people have since that time secured a law requiring publicity before the election, they never had a word of encouragement from him.

Why has he not helped the people to secure tariff reduction? Why has he used the presidential veto to protect those who levy tribute upon a nation? What European crowned head would have dared to stand, as Mr. Taft has, between the people and a reduction of taxation?

Why has he not helped to overthrow the trusts? He insists that he dissolved two trusts, but he has done it in such a way that the ownership has not been changed, the value of the stock has risen, 50 per cent, and the trusts now operate under a decree of the Supreme Court, sanctioned by the President.

To show the farcical character of such an enforcement of the law, let us apply the doctrine of the law stealing. If a sheriff, instead of enforcing the law in the old-fashioned way, were to adopt the style of Mr. Taft, instead of taking the horse away from the thief and sending the thief to the penitentiary, he would let the thief keep the horse, furnish him with another so he could have a team, and then give him a certificate of character and a "God bless you" to look for other horses. Is it any wonder that Mr. Taft has proven unsatisfactory as a chief executive?

Roosevelt gave us Taft.

But why should Mr. Roosevelt be more acceptable to the people than Mr. Taft? Did he not give us Mr. Taft? Did he not pick him out, unaided? Did he not discover him, all by himself? Did he not patent him to prevent infringement on his rights? Did he not nominate him? Did he not guarantee him? Did he not elect him? And did he not then go off and leave him?

Has not Mr. Taft a right to complain of Mr. Roosevelt, for wooing him from obscurity and then deserting him? Have not the people of the country a claim for damages against Mr. Roosevelt for securing the White House for a friend on false representations? And is it not a little unusual for a guarantor to ask to be rewarded for the failure of his principal? Would it not seem absurd for Mr. Roosevelt to present himself as Mr. Taft's successor, when his guess so lamentably on Mr. Taft?

But a moment ago to Mr. Roosevelt's position as a Progressive. Is he not a late-comer into the vineyard? Why did he wait for 18 years after the fight began before he endorsed the election of senators by the people? Why has he failed, even yet, to enter into the 18-year-long struggle to secure an income tax? The struggling masses are overburdened, why has he shown no interest in the effort to transfer a part of this burden to the incomes of the unburdened rich?

Democracy's Long Struggle.

Here is the form of "social justice" which the Democrats have been trying for nearly two decades to secure—and they have labored without aid or encouragement from him. Did he ever indicate a willingness to support an income tax as a permanent part of our fiscal system? He does not now, for while the new party platform asks for a ratification of the income tax amendment—when only two more states are needed—still this is not a declaration in favor of an income tax as a system.

Why has he not assisted in the purifying of politics? Four years ago he endorsed Mr. Taft's position and argued against publicity before the election. He did not advocate publicity before the election until two years ago.

Why has he not assisted in the reduction of the tariff? He never mentioned tariff reduction in a message in the seven and a half years he was in the White House, and he has not assisted in the fight for tariff reduction made by the Democrats and Progressive Republicans during the last four years.

Why has he not taken part in the movement to secure justice to the laboring man? In 1896 he was one of the few public men who ridiculed the laboring man who opposed "government by injunction" and denounced our platform which proposed the very relief from government by injunction, which his platform now demands. He now wants a secretary of labor in the President's Cabinet, but four years ago he opposed our party when our platform contained this very demand. Not only did his convention four years ago reject the demands of the laboring men—the demands incorporated a few days later in the Denver platform—but he secured the nomination and election of Mr. Taft against whom the laboring men specifically and emphatically protested.

He did not advocate railroad legislation until after the Democrats had urged it in three national platforms. "Let the people rule," his slogan in this campaign, was taken bodily from the Democratic platform of 1908. Even the bandana handkerchief, his campaign badge, was borrowed from the campaign of 1888, when Thurman was our candidate for Vice-President. In spite of the fact that he has copied nearly all of his national reforms from Democratic platforms he refuses to give Democrats credit for the fight they made, and his platform speaks of the "fatal incapacity" of the Democratic party. What ingratitude!

But there are some questions upon which he has not adopted the Democratic party's principles nor endorsed its policies. He does not believe with the Democrats in applying the Declaration of Independence to the Philippine Islands; he does not believe with the Democrats in taking the consumer's side of the tariff question; he does not believe with the Democrats that a private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable.

On the contrary, he is willing that monopolies like the Steel Trust shall control the industry in which they are engaged. In explaining his "conversion to progressivism," as told by Will Irwin two weeks ago and published in the papers supporting the new party, he singles out the Steel Trust as a trust that cannot be prevented and that ought not to be dissolved.

He hopelessly declares that if it were dissolved we could not prevent Morgan, Carnegie and Rockefeller, "those three fellows," as he affectionately describes them, from agreeing on prices and methods. No other candidate for President has ever made such a confession of weakness. What can we hope from a President who is only able to punish the small criminals but not able to punish those who levy tribute upon a nation?

His desire for a third term is in itself worthy of rebuke, even if he deserved far more than he does. Shall we reward him with a third term for having given us Mr. Taft for a single term? Shall we give him a third term for failing to protect the people during two terms? If he can tear down a precedent of a hundred years against a third term, who can restore it? If he can open a door which the forefathers have closed, who can close it again when he is through with the White House?

"Wilson Better Fitted."

If there is reason for not continuing Mr. Taft there is equally abundant reason for not returning to Mr. Roosevelt.

Gov. Wilson presents a refuge from both Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt. He fought for democracy in a great battle of brains; he has applied democracy to a state government. In two years he has converted the democracy of New Jersey into a progressive body—as progressive as the democracy of any state in the Union. He is a man of high intelligence—never had a President better fitted intellectually. He has moral courage; it has been tested and found sufficient. Not one man in a million would have been willing to risk his political fortunes as Gov. Wilson has done time and again in support of his position.

And his sympathies are on the side of the people—this is the all-important thing.

Here's to the next President—not to Mr. Taft, the President who is, nor to Mr. Roosevelt, the President who has been, but to Mr. Wilson, the President who will be!

That offensive taste and odor in some beers is easily avoided. Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light.

"While beer quickly deteriorates when it is exposed to direct sunlight, such deterioration, although greatly retarded, will eventually take place in diffused light. Beer exposed to the rays of the sun will very quickly acquire the so-called 'skunky taste'."

TWO STORMS TO CROSS CONTINENT IN A WEEK

Each to Bring Rain or Snow and Colder Weather Will Follow.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A storm
now central west of the Rocky Mountains is coming eastward, bringing local rains and snows for the northern and rains for the southern districts. The storm, according to the Weather Bureau's weekly bulletin, will prevail over the great central valleys Tuesday and the eastern states about Wednesday.

"This disturbance," says the bulletin, "will be preceded by a general rise in temperature the first part of the week in the eastern and southern states and be followed by a change to colder weather, which will appear in the northwest Tuesday or Wednesday."

"Another storm, attended by general precipitation, will reach the north Pacific states Wednesday, or Thursday, prevail over the Middle West about Friday or Saturday, and the eastern states near the close of the week. A change to decidedly colder weather will follow."

SERIOUSLY HURT, WON'T TELL WHO STABBED HIM

Young Man Said to Have Been Wounded Because of Remarks in Presence of Girl.
William Smith, 23 years old, of 1023
North Ninth street, though dangerously wounded, refused to tell the policemen who stabbed him. At the city hospital, when told by surgeons he probably would die, he smiled grimly. He was cut three times in the left thigh, each wound being deep. The affray occurred in the street outside the residence of John Kinney, 221 Tyler street, following a christening there. Seven arrests were made.

The police learned that the stabbing was the result of bad language used by Smith in the presence of Ruth Henry, 18-year-old stepdaughter of Kinney, at the christening Sunday night.

who played "Nearer, My God, to Thee"

bers of the Musical Protective Union

'WINSOME WIDOW' TUNEFUL REVIVAL OF HOYT'S FARCE

Dorothy Jardin Possesses Voice of Unusual Range in Title Role; Harry Conor Pleases.

Judging from the success that "A Winsome Widow" scored at the Olympic Sunday night, it would profit Mr.
Ziegfeld to ever so often thumb over the hits of other days and in his own peculiar way, nobly aided and abetted by milliners who know the art of stage dressing, produces them.

It is true that even the dusty closet where now sleep the plays that delighted mother and father, not a great many of Charles Hoyt's repertory, but perhaps the good fortune that has attended the second coming out of "A Trip to Chinatown" may so strongly tempt other theatrical managers to emulate the or-iginator of the "The Follies" that we may live to see the Prince of Denmark kittenishly doing a Highland fling to the colorful accompaniment of a Ziegfeld chorus.

Harry Conor, showing just a wee bit
the acquaintance of the last 10 years, was as happy as ever in his former Welland Strong, and though laughing youth in the form of Miss Dorothy Jardin tried valiantly to rob him of the honor of the "leading role," a friend of the veteran could easily have manipulated a straw vote contest in Sunday's audience that would have awarded him
the distinction.

Miss Jardin has a voice of unusual range and harmonic possibilities. Needless to say the score of the Winsome Widow does not call for the capabilities of a Mary Garden and it did seem that in order to live up to Caesar's ancient law about being first and second, that Miss Jardin had chosen an unusually small village to make sure of her leadership. Her costumes were as varied and striking as a disintegrated spectrum.

Frank Tenny as the negro waiter at the Foodle Dog placed his creation in the same laugh-provoking class as Mark Smith created in the Spring Maid. His work has a droll, typically southern negro flavor to it that is irresistible in its appeal. He has the rare intelligence not to overplay the part.

The feminine support that is supposed to have made Anna Held famous is a conspicuous asset of the Winsome Widow and Ethel Amorita Kelley flitted in and about it with a very nimble pair of legs that tripped a number of clever steps.

Miss Nana and M. Alexis in a burlesque of a dance were the finale of an evening which may have sent a few of the old guard home mumbling that they preferred their comedy along with other elixirs of life "straight," but which on the whole had the greater majority opinion that the diluted "high ball" has a charm all its own.

EVANS' MINSTRELS.
George Evans' Honey Boy Minstrels made a lot of fun and music at the Century Sunday night. A big house seemed equally pleased with melody and comedy. With the exception that nobody rattled bones, all the old-fashioned minstrelsy was there, and whether it was song, dancing, monologue or dialogue there was action every minute.

The program was in three parts, the first being conventional black-face minstrelsy and music, the feature of which was the solo, "Dear Old Rose," sung by "that eminent baritone, Mr.
Joseph Gillespie." The second part was entitled "Seminary Days," and introduced some eccentric dancing and some comical stunts by Evans himself, and by John King, who, the program says, is without a peer as a wench impersonator.

"Honey Boy" came on with a rattling monologue and scored from the start.
His singing voice was as funny as his costume, and most of his jokes were as freshly starched as his white high-waters. He thrust a little lance at the free bridge, took a poll of voters on national candidates and consumed a cigar, band and all, while he kept laughter
rippling continuously.

Evans, as Gen. Wolf Wood, guest of the Gollygity Guards, in the skit that closed the entertainment, shared honors with Charles Hilliard, whose impersonation of a beautiful mulatto was wonderful. Evans in this skit, brought the fun to a climax.
Vaughn Comfort was intercomer and stage manager, and his hurry up method never permitted a situation to lag.
Comfort also pleased with a solo,
"When the Old Folks Were Young Folks."

PAIN-RENT WOMAN RENEWS PLEA TO BE PUT TO DEATH

Second Appeal by Hopeless Paralytic Asks to Have Comfort of the Grave.

Misfortunes of Woman Who Longs for Death

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. THREE years ago paralyzed from her neck to her feet. Condemned to spend her life as a hopeless paralytic. Two months ago dictated a letter pleading that the State ought to take her life, arguing that she should not be forced to live longer. Letter arouses widespread attention and sympathy. Makes second tragic appeal, describing in detail her sufferings, and saying: "My sole longing is for the peace of the grave. Let those who pity or would help me give me that."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Another plea came today from Mrs. Sarah Harris, begging that means be speedily found to relieve her by death from the pains of paralysis, for which she believes there is no cure. Two months ago, through a letter dictated from her invalid's bed in the Audubon Sanitarium, she called for measures to legalize the "happy dispatch" for incurables petitioning for it, like herself. Her plea has been narrowed to her individual case.

"Suffering has made me selfish," she said. "I did urge a law that might apply at large. My demand for relief occasioned a discussion which is very old. I cannot see that it helped me at all. It brought to me many letters, some of them extending sympathy, others advising me to trust in God."

Seeks Neither Sympathy Nor Advice. "Let it be known that I am not looking for sympathy nor seeking advice; that I shrink from sensation and on no account would I become an object of wonder. At 33, in the prime of life, in full mental strength, I have been unable for three years to move a muscle except of the head and neck. My body is constantly racked with pain. I am doomed to immobility. Life has no prospect for me beyond the blank wall opposite the foot of my bed. My sole longing is for the peace of the grave. Let those who pity or would help me give me that."

"In the two months that I have been tendered the sympathy of gentle hearts and the consolations of religion, I have not known sleep. Not for an instant have I been free from agonizing pain. When, now and then, I become drowsy, the distresses of my body intensify and drive rest away. I can never escape the racking of nerves that refuse to be quieted in the three years that I have lain helpless. The efforts of the doctors to ease me have made my system wholly irresponsible to drugs. No opiate is longer effective. I cannot be helped or cured, but must suffer always. "My head is at all times clear, my lungs, heart and kidneys normal. Under the care which I receive I am likely to live for many years, to grow old lying on my back, unable to do anything except to stare at the wall and ceiling, or to get now and then a glimpse of the flag on the building across the way, visible from my bed through the window."

"It is impossible that I can ever be anything but a burden to myself, a source of anxiety to those who love me. The grave would end my pains and my loved ones would soon be reconciled to their loss of me and become happier with the cessation of worry."

No Attention Clothed. "At no time since my illness have I lacked kind attention. Everything possible has been done for me. Life was very dear and beautiful at first. If a cheerful spirit, a willing heart, a buoyant disposition and all the instincts of daughter, wife and mother could have helped the doctors in my cure, I should have been well long ago. "The only thing humans can do for me is to pass me beyond pain."

"The paralysis that numbs all physical feeling and leaves the patient incapable of sensation in the affected parts is a disease that may be contemplated philosophically."

"That from which I suffer is very different. It has attacked the muscles and rendered them impotent. Gradually they must waste away. They are already useless. Along with that misery, which renders me completely immobile below the neck, there has come extreme sensitiveness of the nerves. Most persons recall with a shudder the jumping nerves of toothache. My entire body is enveloped with such nerves, which I must endure, from which my paralyzed muscles do not permit me to shrink, and that pain never leaves me."

"The letter writers who suggest prayers for me mean well, but cannot help. It is idle to say to me that all things are ordained for the best and that pains of the body are inflicted to chasten me. If that is so it does not concern me now. I am content with what I know, that the grave only can bring me peace or rest or cessation from pain. Those three things I most ardently want. Won't a way be found for me to have them, through the counsels of the many-minded?"

Believes Case Is Special One. "It may be that the prejudice against any general law for disposing of incurables in this way is too strong to be overcome. If so, might not it be for abuse is not possible and the evidence of experts is abundant and the prayer of the patient is as earnest as was ever uttered?"

"I am telling my story for the public, in hope of a practical solution of a vital problem. Let those who are to judge remember that I am not open to sympathy, pity or religious advice, and that I make appeal in this way because I own no hope in any other. Let the many-minded find for me a way of honorable relief."

I AM ready, Jack. Get the ring from Letitia on credit; then we will see the minister.

Though Watts may have traveled farther than other contestants in the race, he does not win a prize, as his balloon was declared out of the contest because it ascended after sunset and was supposed thus to have greater carrying power. Watts had to use the Düsseldorf II because his own balloon, the Watts, was destroyed just before the start of the race.

Pakoy is more than 1600 miles from Stuttgart, and is 160 miles southeast of St. Petersburg. The French balloon Picarde broke a world's record, sailing to a point more than 100 miles south of Moscow. If Watts landed at Pakoy he falls short of the Picarde record.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.
April 10, 1907. JOSEPH PULITZER.

THE MARINE BAND INCIDENT.

The sole result of the interference of the local musicians' union and Congressman Bartholdt with the engagement of the Marine Band at the Coliseum Tuesday night is to deprive thousands of pupils of the public schools and parochial schools and thousands of adult St. Louisans of the pleasure of hearing a delightful concert.

No principle of labor unionism was involved in the band's engagement. No interest of union labor was attacked or endangered in the arrangement for the free concert. The union musicians would have lost nothing if the free concert in connection with the Post-Dispatch's election returns had been given. The Marine Band would have offered two pay concerts if the Post-Dispatch had not taken the Coliseum for Tuesday night and accepted the band contract as a necessary arrangement in order to obtain the building. The union musicians have gained nothing by preventing the concert. The St. Louis people have lost a treat.

The Marine Band was merely an incident in the Post-Dispatch's plan of giving the St. Louis public opportunity to get election returns under the most advantageous conditions. We accepted the band concert as a necessary part of the contract for the Coliseum and added to our free election entertainment provided for the public two delightful concerts by one of the best bands in the country. The local musicians themselves might have enjoyed and profited by the superb work of the band. Our interest in the arrangement did not extend beyond keeping the contract, we had accepted. As a matter of courtesy we gave a full and friendly explanation of the conditions of the engagement to the directors of the local musicians' organization.

As a friend of union labor dealing fairly with it and defending its rightful objects and methods, the Post-Dispatch feels impelled to say that its interference with these concerts was an unwise use of its power.

The members of the Marine Band are non-union men solely because they are enlisted in the United States Navy. The band is a part of the navy and a Government exhibit. The Government has a right to give the people opportunity to hear their crack naval band as the people have a right to hear it when occasion offers, in St. Louis or elsewhere as well as in Washington.

We said there was no principle of unionism involved in the question; but there is an American principle involved in preventing the band's playing by political intimidation—the principle of liberty. The cause of union labor is injured by a wanton and tyrannical use of the political power of the organization.

The great silent vote will probably make the biggest noise in the country's history.

THE BERLIN HOTEL FIRE.

Fire Chief Swingley has wisely decided that a careful inspection must be made of the fire escapes on all family hotels in the city. Unquestionably the equipment at the Berlin Hotel did not represent the acme in such facilities. Accounts of the fire in which three persons lost their lives and 21 were injured are read with the decided impression that much better provision might have been made for the safety of inmates in just such conditions of peril as they were compelled to face. This building was but three stories high. What would have been the casualties, had it been two or even one story higher? Inspection after loss of life and injury have called attention to needed safeguards is better than no inspection at all. But the inspection that is continuous all the year round, that does not require the spur of regrettable happenings to urge it to efficiency, is the best inspection.

Gov. Hadley seems to be the favorite ex post facto goat of the Republican National Committee. It will be a unique distinction to be actually defeated before nominated.

ACQUITTAL OF WALTER MOZAK.

The legal status of the man who snored has been determined by a Chicago court presided over by Judge Uhlir. He says there is nothing criminal in it.

If Walter Mozak, whose snores woke up a whole Chicago apartment house, is not a malefactor, then the blameless offender of the American sleeping car is not a malefactor. On the contrary, the logical assumption from this decision is that he is an impeccable citizen of untarnished worth. The felonious imitations from his larynx no doubt are prima facie evidence of his personal excellence and stainless record. Probably we ought to be glad that in addition to refraining from giving Mr. Mozak 80 days, this Chicago court did not present him with a certificate of merit.

Taking judicial notice of the verities in the unpropitious sort of way is what encourages Lynch law. With such delinquencies on the part of our courts, is it any wonder the people are confirmed in their belief that they are entitled to "clial justice"? If we ever have the popular judicial revision, this malevolent judgment must be one of the first to be swept by popular uprising into the limbo of imaginary judgments.

VOTE FOR PROGRESS.

Unless all signs fail and all important political experts are mistaken Woodrow Wilson will be elected President by an overwhelming majority of the Electoral College.

None of Wilson's opponents expects to be elected. The fight between the two wings of the Republican party is for control of the party organization after the election.

The Democrats are practically united and two strong reasons impel the great majority of independent newspapers and voters to support the Democratic national ticket.

One is the necessity for a change of party control which is inevitable in our system of party government.

The partnership between the plutocratic forces seeking privilege and advantage in government and the Republican organization has been exposed thoroughly. Both Republican candidates are tarred with the same stick. Both have entangling alliances with the powerful interests which have controlled the Government for their own benefit. Taft proposes to continue excessive tariff taxation for the further enrichment of protected monopolies. Roosevelt goes beyond this and proposes to legalize monopoly and establish industrial and commercial slavery for which even state Socialism would be a relief.

Another potent reason flowing from the first is the necessity of a better distribution of the wealth produced by the country. Prosperity itself is on a safe basis of rich production and strong demand. But its distribution is unfair. Great rake-offs go to the masters of finance and of industry and of commerce by reason of their control of Government.

Despite prosperous conditions, times are hard for the producer and the toiler—the salaried man and the wage earner. The cost of living is excessive on account of high tariffs and monopoly prices.

The plutocratic system must be smashed. Wilson's election will place in the chief executive office a sincere, honest, straightforward, able statesman who is pledged to destroy the plutocratic system of Government control. He is pledged to eliminate privilege in a way which will eventually bring the Government to a sound, just basis as the servant of all the people, but will not injure any legitimate interests.

Gov. Wilson's character, his equipment, his proven courage and capacity are guarantees that he will honor his promises. He is clean of entangling alliances and hampering influences.

Whether Gov. Wilson is elected or not, the American people, without regard to party affiliations, have reason to be proud of the man, his career, his splendid campaign. They are inspirations to higher ideals and better achievements in American politics. His campaign has been dignified, impersonal, good tempered, forceful and adorned with enlightening utterances on fundamental and vital issues of republican government which will remain a valuable heritage to the people regardless of his political fortunes. His cause will eventually win.

But it is vitally important that it win now. And it is important also that with the election of Wilson there shall be a Democratic majority in both branches of Congress. The Democratic victory should be so decisive that he will have an harmonious Congress to carry out the admirable policies he has outlined.

Progress for the American people lies in the election tomorrow of a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress.

Vote for true American progress.

Howard Sidener is practically without experience in the trial of felony cases, such as murder, robbery, burglary, arson and all offenses above the grade of misdemeanors. Sidener's work has been in police court cases, petty offenses. He is not what is known as a criminal lawyer, and his experience in the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court, to which felony cases are appealed, has been very limited. On the point of competence Sidener must be defeated. Judge Thomas B. Harvey, his opponent, is one of the ablest criminal trial lawyers Missouri has produced.

Vote to "clean house" in Washington.

BETTER TRAINED MISSOURIANS.

The problem of better trained professional men seems to be taking care of itself. The great need of this time is for better, more practically trained men in all lines of productive activities—farmers, mechanics, miners, business men. Amendment No. 9 will provide more money to give such a training to the next generation of Missourians. Amendment No. 1 will give one year's more schooling to those obliged to become wage-workers at an early age. All patriotic citizens desirous of conditions that will promote the future progress of the State should see that their votes are recorded in the affirmative on both these amendments.

Vote for reform and efficiency in the Circuit Attorney's office by voting for Harvey.

DRIVING THE TURKS INTO ASIA.

The danger of a massacre of Christian non-combatants is the only thing that detracts from the joyous satisfaction felt in this country because of the victories of the allies over the Turks, victories as unexpected and brilliant as those of the Japanese over the Russians. Captured Turkish officers predict that if the allies' successes are not checked, exasperated Mohammedans will rise against their hundreds of thousands of Christian neighbors domiciled in portions of the empire not likely to be touched by the war.

That is a most probable contingency. Well authenticated reports show already that in dozens of villages near the extended firing line, Turkish troops have slaughtered Christian civilians. The killings of unarmed Christians in Turkey under war would only continue the commonest of Mohammedan recreations in Turkey under peace. The persistence of such atrocities in spite of young Turk promises is, in fact, the chief cause of the present war.

The young Turks were the last hope of Mohammedan Turkey. If the great powers will withhold their hands, the vexations of a situation that has endured for hundreds of years will be ended by the allies. If they succeed in driving the Sultan across the Hellespont, he should stay there. America, which is sending tens of thousands of its adopted sons to assist in this fight for freedom and liberal institutions, has an interest in seeing that the sacrifices are not made in vain. The public sentiment of the world should prevent such a famous, illogical outcome of the war as would preserve any vestige of Turkish rule in Southeastern Europe.

The voter who scratches wisely is a potent factor in good government.

WHAT WOULD SIDENER DO?

Suppose that St. Louis were in the toils of the gamblers, suppose a conspiracy of gamblers, criminals and police held the city in power as was the case in New York disclosed by the Rosenthal murder. What would Howard Sidener do in that event if he held the place of Circuit Attorney?

Notorious gamblers, convicted gamblers, several ex-bookmakers, sheet writers, agents of race track owners, and lid club proprietors are working with might and main for Sidener's election. The gang elements in both parties are united for Sidener, and the worst elements in the community are exerting every means toward his election.

Is there a definite understanding between Sidener and the lawless elements respecting his control of the great power of the Circuit Attorney's office?

If not, then why are the forces of lawlessness boldly put forth in his behalf? Sidener as Prosecuting Attorney has shown leniency toward lid club lawlessness. What would he do as Circuit Attorney? Would Sidener control the criminal elements of the community or would the criminal elements organize and control Sidener?

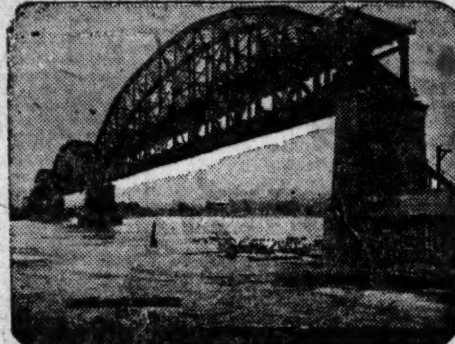

We know what Thomas B. Harvey would do. He would prosecute criminals and break up crime with the full vigor of the law.

SCRATCH HOWARD SIDENER AND VOTE FOR THOMAS B. HARVEY FOR CIRCUIT ATTORNEY.

Put the Free Bridge to work for St. Louis by voting for the bond issue.

END THE BRIDGE SCANDAL TOMORROW.

Hereafter for the eighty-seventh and we hope for the last time we publish a picture of the unfinished municipal bridge to remind voters of their duty to vote for the bridge bonds at tomorrow's election.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Coal Miner's Reasons.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I fully and firmly believe that the retention of any political party, regardless of name, in continuous power for too great a length of time, is not advisable, but is detrimental to the best interests of good government under a form where the people are supposed to rule. Any party will become corrupt if continued in power too long.

That peerless and fearless leader, W. J. Bryan, whose untiring energy and devotion to any cause he knows to be right, is another reason why I am going to vote for Woodrow Wilson.

I am a bona fide workman and have been a lifelong Republican, but intend to vote a straight Democratic ticket on the fifth day of November, 1912.

COAL MINER.

Prediction.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I understand that in 1870 a weird old woman prophesied that the Republican party would be in power most of the time for many years; that it would be greatly shaken, and perhaps completely destroyed when it should choose a candidate with a name rhyming with graft. HALLOWEEN.

Ben Clark's Candidacy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
The opposition of the Post-Dispatch to the candidacy of Ben Clark for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction is regretted by his friends. Mr. Clark comes of a good honest family. His father, Prof. Clark, was principal of a public school in Franklin County, Mo., subsequently and for many years conducted Clark's Academy, in St. Louis, where many St. Louis professional and business men were educated. He may when in office be more lenient to offenders than he should, but when not coupled by improper motives or other considerations, may be attributed more to good nature than intentional wrong. That he was fined for some alleged violations of courtroom ethics by the Judge is not new or novel in the practice of law. All this in his life occurred more than twenty years ago.

M. K. McGRATH.

A Plea For the Bridge Bonds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Now, friends, let us together get, no fault finding nor reproach, but let us all both large and small, vote bonds for bridge approach. The steam cars then will come across, for which we would have room, and slow and sleepy South Broadway will have a business boom. The Germans there will cheer aloud from early morn till noon and the Irish wing in Gaelic sing "A hoo Calleen gosson." PATRICK B. SHEVLIN.

The Man on the Box.

The Case of Geo. Wiggins.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
We would be pleased to have you correct an untrue statement which was published in your paper of Oct. 31 in reference to the case of George Wiggins. You may care to know that the affair of this boy was all settled with Judge Withrow before it was brought into court, as this boy preferred taking a life sentence to having his mother appear at a trial for him, and the statement saying that he came in the courtroom smiling and showing a great deal of bravado, is absolutely untrue, as I was a witness of this affair which took five minutes. It is to be regretted that this family should have untrue statements printed about this case, as that boy has suffered in that jail all this time and expects to suffer for the deed he did while crazed with drink.

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY.

A CHANCE TO RENEW AN OLD FRIENDSHIP.

AT THE PRICE OF TRUTH.

President Taft has said of the Tariff Board's report in justification of his veto of the wool bill that it shows "the Democratic bill would have put the manufacturers of woollens entirely out of business."

That report shows for 48 varieties of woolen and worsted cloth an average difference in total cost of production between the United States and abroad of 28 cents per linear yard, while the existing tariff, reduced to specie duty, averages 7 cents per yard.

Would a Democratic tariff bill which reduced this protection by no more than one-half put these manufacturers "entirely out of business?"

Would it put them out of business when at the same time it reduced the duties on, and the cost of imported wool which these manufacturers must use?

The presidency of the United States should not be worth anybody's having at such cost to the truth as Mr. Taft's ill-considered statement represents.

TAFT MEN AND WILSON.

From the New York Herald.
Mr. Taft has rendered this country a great service. He defeated the Bull Moose at the Republican convention. He is now making a splendidly effective and dignified campaign, but so great a patriot is Mr. Taft that we doubt not, should the danger of the election of the Bull Moose through a division in the Republican ranks become great he would be the man to mount the loftiest and say to his friends:

Rather than that American institutions be overturned, vote for Mr. Wilson.

Undoubtedly this course will be considered by the greatest care not only by hundreds of thousands, but by millions of Republicans between now and election day. The Republicans should support Wilson rather than have the country pass into the hands of the Third Term adventurer.

Turn Jail Into a School.

From the Pickens (S. C.) Sentinel.
Old Pickens continues to make records. Sheriff Hoark tells us that last Wednesday his last prisoner left the jail and since then the jail has been empty. About a year ago was the last time there were no prisoners in the county jail. If Pickens keeps on improving we won't have any use for a jail and we'll have to make a schoolhouse out of it.

Distilled Wild Cats.

From the Kansas City Star.
"A good many years ago," said the Arkansas citizen who was showing the tourist from the North around the neighborhood, "there was a wildcat distillery up that 'ere rock holler."

"What sort of 'ah'-product," inquired the visitor, "was obtained from the distillation of wildcats?"

With neither left nor comma, and fle upon the one who first shall bellow for his mamma.

The country will survive the row, however it's decided.

And it can't much matter, anyhow. The way we are divided.

Nostalgia.

From the Dundee Advertiser.
Fond Mother (who has allowed a whole week of the new term to elapse before running down to see her boy): And how has my darling been getting on?

Master: Very well, very well. Suffering a little from nostalgia, perhaps.

Fond Mother: Nostalgia! And the dentist assured me he wouldn't have any more trouble with it!

Was It a Self-Defense?

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.
King Peter of Serbia went to the war in an automobile. Not so romantic as a prancing charger, but likely to be as troublesome on the field of battle.

Come and Saltsman Was.

From the Boston Herald.
As a war sign the new comet is a little belated; but its diminutive size is amply made up.

JUST A MINUTE.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

ALL CONFIDENT.

"Who is the candidate ahead, and gaining rapidly?" they said.

"The one who dashes down the track with the others howling at his back."

"Why, that," said Hilkie.

Hopeful still.

"Why, that's our man."

I reckon—Bill.

"The one in running tight," they cried.

"With a smiling bottle at his side."

His backers greeting him with cheers, and his knee-caps fanning at his ears."

"Why, that," said Mr.

Bryan. "Yes—"

Why, that's our Jerseyman.

I guess.

"The fast man raising all the dust?"

They said in evident distrust.

"The fellow showing them his heels like a farmhand going to his meal?"

"Why, that," the Rooseveltians said.

"Why, that's our lion hunter, Ted."

"That's him?" they

Separately said.

"That's Bill!" "The Jerseyman"

And "Ted!"

NOVEMBER.

November is from the Latin novem, nine. It was formerly the ninth month of the year, but Numa, who was running for a third term, refused to issue the regular Thanksgiving proclamation until he knew how he was coming out, and pushed it along to eleventh place. He was defeated, and did not proclaim any Thanksgiving at all, but the one and two-termers got together, and the day was celebrated over his head.

A fond farewell, thou lovely fall, the winter days are coming. The ivy rattles on the wall, and the flowers are succumbing. The wild geese wedge down the sky, with Boreas to bite him, and the bull moose sounds his thrilling cry for all who care to fight him.

Adieu to peace, the tender sky, the beauties of the season, the candidate's untroubled eye and the mere appeal to reason. The battle rushes to its close, the bull begins to bellow, and the last man with a bloody nose will be a lucky fellow.

The field at Armageddon throbs with the heat of battle on it and the red bandanna blithely bobs above the royal bonnet. The golf club rises on the air from each new-patterned noggin, and the Jersey man is everywhere with his bloody pogonoggin.

Lay on, thou warriors athirst, With neither left nor comma, And fle upon the one who first shall bellow for his mamma.

The country will survive the row, however it's decided.

And it can't much matter, anyhow. The way we are divided.

The hunter's horn will rouse the morn with mellow music of the chase, and waking day will look the worn old corn and duckshooter in the face. The pneumatic will deliver a few wet pellets in his boot, and at the end he will arise and calmly massacre a coot.

Meanwhile, the farmer will pursue the bold quail hunter on his manse, and having deftly worked him through a few wire fences, get his pants. The chilled trespasser, with his knees in rapid motion in the blast will hurry homeward while disease pursues him hotly to the last.

The frightened men, this last time out, will cast their votes for President, And the women, loitering about, Will vote their growing discontent. They'll get the men in such a state Before the voting has commenced.

They'll sometimes help the candidate That like as not they bet against.

What women's rights can haply be occasions many grave disputes, but once the women folks agree, they'll get them, you can bet your boots! As like as not another fall or such a matter will suffice, and in the new arrangement all the men can ever be vice.

At any rate, we'll vote this time, and till that imminent event, the wondrous beauties of the clime will not occasion much comment. The sassafras will waste its frail and fragile beauty on the blind, and the sweet cadenzas of the quail will perish on the Autumn wind.

The doughty little Balkan states will measure ecurage with the Turks, and keep the harvesters of dates attending strictly to his works. They'll make him pile his blooming rump as high as Haman for defense, and we'll be picking out the slugs a year or so after a matter hence.

The only damage to accrue will be to fill the rugs with lumps, and buying them, as we will do, we'll never now and then will dig a bullet from the nap, and having paid the doctor ten, we'll all exorcise the scrap.

The calf will show a redder plush, and take a tail-hold in the stack. The end will meet the center rush, and spring the hinges in his back. The hired man will choose the reddest and thickest blankets in the night, and the wind will pry around the door to see if everything is tight.

For the first twenty-two days November will be under the influence of Scorpio, the eleventh sign of the zodiac. Any boy born in this period can be a President without the usual formalities. Scorpio people are the rulers of the earth. They always have a good toehold at the kick-off, and if they once get the ball it is impossible to take it away from them. Luther, Von Molke and Bwana Tumbo are typical Scorpio people, all of them having been born under this sign.

The last seven days of November will be under the influence of Sagittarius the Archer. The best anyone born in this period can hope for is the vice-presidency. Still, these folks have tremendous foresight, and can usually see where they aren't going to jail, which is a great help to any big business man.

Carnegie and Croker are typical Sagittarians, and were both born under this sign.

The President's regular Thanksgiving proclamation, advancing turkey ten cents a pound, will be issued right after the election.

And then December's winds will rout The last leaf clinging to the tree, And the cider will become about What apple cider ought to be.

PROSE POEM.

I wish the leaves could turn to gold without the cost of taking cold. For all the beauty of the trees, it isn't very nice to sneeze. It renders everyone cold for thinking it a motor horn, and every time one sneezes a toot the people all begin to sneeze. Why couldn't the leaves be made to turn to gold without sneezing? To see the world with undimmed eyes would be a wonderful surprise.

Go around when Autumn blows without a red and tender nose would be a great improvement on the Autumns that have come and gone. The dimpling sky was soft as blue, and all the world was cool here! were not and beautiful to see, if that—kerchoo!—could haply be.

NOVEMBER 4.
Only one day now remaining Of the tumult and the din, Till the foot of Bill and Teddy Lets the other fallow in.

J. B.—If contract calls for a first-class job, and you do not get it, don't pay; insist upon the work being taken up and relaid; it is their place to protect the work until thoroughly dried out. You no doubt know what firm delivered the material on the ground. Before paying, get a receipt against a lien, have contractor produce a quit-claim receipt from the material firm, the latter having delivered has been paid for. If you are positive the contractor is a reliable party, such precaution is not necessary.

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS.—You will find it no easy task to dispose of the mortgage as to the first you would experience no trouble, but to dispose of that and keep the second would endange your security. To dispose of the second is harder, possible, but if accomplished would be very expensive. The incumbrance against the $7500 is rather heavy, it leaves a margin of only 10 per cent.

"THE RED CROSS GIRL" STORIES BLOOD WILL TELL

This is the fourth story from the "Red Cross Girl" book, by Richard Harding Davis, which Col. Roosevelt read while in the Chicago hospital.

DAVID GREENE, salesman for the Burdett Automatic Pen Co., is somewhat of a prodigy. He had three books, obtained from a local book store, to study his attention. They were Macaulay's "Miscellaneous Essay," "The Red Cross Girl," by Richard Harding Davis, and "Coming of the Law," by Charles Alden Seltzer. He was in some way, well known in the Chicago hospital.

(Copyright, 1912, by Charles Scribner's Sons.)

PART IV.

FOR several hours with very languid interest David watched Lighthouse Harry and Col. Beamish screw a heavy tripod to the deck and balance above it a quick-drying one-pounder. They worked very slowly, and to David, watching the slow, steady scupper, they appeared extremely unintelligent.

"I don't believe either of those things put an automatic gun together in his life," he whispered to Carr. "I never did, either, but I've put hundreds of automatic punches together, and I bet that gun works with it!" said Carr. "Before David could summon sufficient energy to answer, the attention of all on board was diverted, and by a single word.

Whether the word was whispered apologetically by the smoking room steward to those deep in bridge, or shrieked from the tops of a tall mast, it never quite fails of its effect. A sweating stoker from the engine room saw it first.

"Land!" he yelled. The sea-sick Cubans relaxed at once and swung their hats; their voices rose in a fierce chorus. "Cuba libre!" they yelled. "The sun piercing the morning mists had uncovered a coast-line broken with bays and inlets. Above it towered green hills, the peak of each topped by a squat blockhouse; in the valleys and water courses like columns of marble rose the royal palms.

"You must look!" Carr entreated David. "It's just as it is in the pictures!" "Then I don't have to look," groaned David.

The Three Friends was making for a point of land that curved like a sickle. In the inside of the sickle was Nipe Bay. On the opposite shore of that great harbor at the place of rendezvous a little band of Cubans waited to receive the filibusters. The goal was in sight. The dreadful voyage was done. Joy and excitement thrilled the ship's company. Cuban patriots appeared in uniforms with Cuban flags pinned in the brims of their straw sombreros. From the hold came boxes of small-arm ammunition, of Mausers, rifles, machetes, and saddles. To protect the landing a box of shells was placed in readiness beside the one-pounder.

"In two hours, if we have smooth water," shouted Lighthouse Harry, "we ought to get all of this on shore. And then, all I ask," he cried mightily, "is for some one to kindly show me a Spaniard!" His heart's desire was instantly granted. He was shown not only one Spaniard, but several Spaniards. They were on the deck of one of the fastest gun boats of the Spanish navy. Not a mile from The Three Friends she sprang from the cover of a narrow inlet. She did not signal questions or extend courtesies. For her the name of the ocean-going tug was sufficient introduction. Throwing ahead of her a solid shell, she raced in pursuit, and as The Three Friends leaped to full speed there came from the gun boat the sharp dry crackle of Mausers.

With an explosion of terrifying oaths Lighthouse Harry thrust a shell into the breach of the quick-firing gun. Without waiting to aim it, he tugged at the trigger. Nothing happened. He threw open the breech and gazed intently at the base of the shell. It was untouched. The ship was ringing with cries of anger, of hate, with rat-like squawks of fear. Above the heads of the filibusters a shell screamed and within a hundred feet splashed into a wave. From his mat in the lee scupper David groaned miserably. He was far removed from any of the greater emotions.

A Beautiful Barbarian Is an Impossibility, Therefore, Woman's Fashions Are Not Barbarous

No simple, clean-minded savage could, however, achieve the triumphantly vulgar appeal of some costumes women wear.

By Nikola Greeley-Smith.

"S"TONES and shells, bones and claws, plumes and feathers, pelts and fur skins, flower smells and animal odors—of such are the "barbarous fashions" of woman as they are described by her latest critic. But no matter how incongruous its elements may be, if a costume in its entirety conveys an effect of beauty, the accusation of barbarism may not be brought properly against it. For beauty is the final flower of civilization.

A beautiful barbarian is an impossibility. Therefore, if woman's fashions are barbarous it is because they are not beautiful.

Now, just what are our present fashions? We know that draperies have triumphed at last over the scabbard skirt, in which even the slenderest woman looked like a lone, lean crane with one leg tucked under her wing, or like the twin sister of her new silk umbrella.

We know that it is essential to be as Oriental as it's possible to appear well, creating the suspicion that one hails really from a Persian harem.

We know that tailors now shrug their shoulders when we suggest that $75 is enough to pay for a plain tailor-made, saying doubtfully "A serge, yes—perhaps, but for anything else $75 is impossible. Why, all the materials this year are $8 and $10 a yard!"

WE know that on the same gown some stripes must run north and south and others east and west—by way of trimming. We know that the price of a hat this year travels universally in proportion to its size—the smaller the hat, the larger the bill. But no one of these things in itself is proof of a return to barbarism.

But surely a diamond-dazzle gown is strong evidence for the prosecution. I saw one of these extraordinary garments the other day. It had a chain of brilliant-cut diamonds, the low neck, twisted into bow-knots on the corsage, continuing in two lines down the front of the skirt and all the way around a three-looped belt.

Two long balls hung from each of the wearer's ears, and the whole effect suggested a moving pawnbroker's shop. It was barbarous, but not splendid as barbarism may be at its best.

There is one aspect of the modern woman's beautifying processes which shows a paucity of ideas when the barbarian displays a sound instinct for variety. This is in the ornamentation of her complexion.

THE savage brave, who is of course the savage beauty, has originally enough to put more than one color on his face. He may have three blue and much more beautiful than her husband's hideously practical outfit. But what do Post-Dispatch readers think about it? Are fashions for women barbarous? And do they set the pace for the general extravagance of modern American life? Here is one man's opinion. He writes:

Dear Madam:—Women are not barbarous. They are merely vain and silly. So great is woman's vanity that one woman did recently from the effects of having the skin removed from her face by a so-called beauty doctor. She wanted to look younger. But women are in no sense the equals of men, who, in caring for them and preserving them from their natural folly, are real philanthropists.

The husband who hurries off to his daily labor thinks his wife has so many household duties that, according to his humble opinion, the chief reason why love was like a potato was because it became less by paring.

"He certainly was in a position to know," said the Woman, "but a rule is often proved by its exceptions, and present company always excepted. But, joking aside, your eyes would really be lovely if you gave them half a chance. I often feel as if I'd like to organize a society of 'Prevention of Cruelty to the Eyes.'"

"What do you mean? How do I maltreat my own eyes?"

"Well, to begin at the very beginning, you sleep in the wrong way. Your bed is so placed that it faces the glare of the window. And the sun or any strong light will strain the eyes, even when they are closed. If you put a dark shade over the window, and place a small screen to cut off the light from your eyes when the window was open, you would get up in the morning with much brighter eyes, and I wager you would suffer less from headache."

"When one has been automobiling or even walking on a windy day it is a good plan to bathe the eyes in water containing a little boric acid. A good pinch to half a glass of water is about the proper proportion. If the eyelids stick together in the morning, you must never smooth them down properly. A little vaseline rubbed on the lids every night will also make the lashes thicker and darker."

BAD FOR THE EYES

eye. All the hairs should be smoothed readily in the semi-circular shape of the ideal eyebrow. Some people have ugly, mussy-looking eyebrows, because they never smooth them down properly. A little vaseline rubbed on the lids every night will also make the lashes thicker and darker."

THE POCKET ENCYCLOPEDIA

WHY is charcoal used as a poultice? It absorbs the foul gases, etc., of air and water.

Why are smoked glasses worn when climbing snow-covered mountains? Every particle of snow or ice reflects the sun's rays like a mirror; and this glare is liable to cause temporary blindness.

What is shale? Shale is a form of slate that splits easily into thin, brittle layers.

What is the origin of the Scottish tartan, or plaid? The ancient Picts and Scots tattooed their skins, each tribe or clan having its distinctive colors and patterns. When clothing came into use the Scots dyed and patterned the cloth to represent, as had the tattooing, the color designs of the various clans.

What are the three thermometers used? Centigrade, Reaumur and Fahrenheit.

Why are the bands on a tank placed closer together at the bottom than at the top? Because the pressure of the tank's contents is greater at the bottom than elsewhere.

Why are sounds heard further in foggy weather than in fair? Because loudness depends on the density of the gas in which the sound originates. Fog is denser than ordinary air.

THE KID MAKES AN ELECTION ESTIMATE

Written for the Post-Dispatch.

By ALMA WOODWARD

I DON'T get nuthin' out uv it. Last Election night they put me to bed jus' the same, at half past seven. An' then everyone 'cept Della went out an' had a swell time hollerin' an' blowin' things. An' when I sat up in bed an' gave a war whoop, jus' fer spite, Della she come runnin' in an' said:

"Put yer head down under the covers, ye noisy brat, or the neighbors'll think it's murderin' ye I am!"

An' I bet a feller a dime an' I won, an' I bought a dime's worth uv six-day suckers an' I hid 'em under my pillow, an' in the middle uv the night the blasted things all melted an' got mixed up with my half somethin' fierce, an' all I got out uv it was a tickle! I ain't never had no fun on Election eve.

My pa's goin' to vote fer Wilson. I think he is. I ain't sure, 'cause he wuz my ma he wuz, an' usally he does opposite to what he tells my ma.

It's grand up to our house jus' 'fore Election, though. 'Cause pa an' ma is so busy fightin' at the table I c'n sneak things off'n the plates an' gobble 'em 'fore they're on to it. An' if they do catch me at it they got such bad feelin's toward each other that pa blames ma fer the way she brings me up, an' ma blames pa, 'cause she says I got my disposition from him.

The other night pa had two men up fer dinner, an' they put me to bed 'cause I ain't allowed to eat along when they got company, but I went an' hid in the porters out in the hall an' I listened to 'em scrap.

An' one uv the men wuz a smart Alec. He sez:

"A feller went up to Mr. Taft an' he sez to him, 'I want you to sell the Philippines,' an' Mr. Taft sez, 'Nothin' doin', cull,' an' the feller sez, 'Yer a bum President,' an' Mr. Taft sez, 'What do you mean?' an' the feller sez, 'Why don't you be smart an' sell the Philippines, an' then we c'n buy Ireland an' raise our own cops.'"

An' then my pa he began to call him names, an' he says that joke got shaved 'fore Adam took his first drink. An' the man said:

"Say, you remind me uv the polite lady what says when you ask her to hear a story, 'Oh, yes, indeed, but I'd LOVE to hear it again.'"

An' then they begin to talk about Mr. Roosevelt, an' the man sez he wuzn't ashamed to let every one know he wuz a Bull Moose. An' pa sez:

"Roosevelt, he ain't got no more introduced."

There is nothing you can do except to wait till he is introduced to you.

No Love Without Respect.

C. I. writes: "I should marry a certain young man in a year, but though I love him he often breaks his promises to me and does not always treat me respectfully. What shall I do?"

If you do not feel that you can trust and respect him you should not make him your husband.

THERE WERE FIVE STARTERS

(No. 5 in a Moving Picture Series. To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

THE JARR FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. Jarr decide they do not want to dine after all.

T HE eye of the head waiter was directed with cynical glee at his (Mr. Jarr's) shoes.

They were his last winter's black calf business shoes. Mr. Jarr had never worn pumps in his life. It was only a head waiter sizing up his footgear, but Mr. Jarr would have given his increase of salary to have had on patent leather pumps.

The black calf shoes were highly polished at Gus' corner best manner. Up until this moment Mr. Jarr had been perfectly satisfied with his shoes and the shine. Now if he had been a peacock he could have been no more ashamed of his feet.

He dragged them in under his chair. But he knew the head waiter had X-ray eyes and was gazing through table and chair right at them and could see as plain as day the "invisible patch" on the left side of the left shoe under the table and all the glossy surface of Tony's handiwork.

Two of the foreign noblemen who served under the demon head waiter paused to greet their superior. That worthy evidently told them the droll circumstances of the cheap party with the patch on his shoe. Mr. Jarr could feel his angry passions rise again.

He had seen taxi chauffeurs gaze after him tonight, he had seen waiters regard him with unusual disdain. Now the awful thought came home to him that perhaps the cabmen were wondering how often that silk hat had gone to Bellefontaine, that perhaps the waiters thought his dress suit savored of the attire of those that served.

"They think I'm a waiter on my evening off!" was his bitter thought. "They think I'm a chauffeur or a waiter," he mused, "and wonder what I do here as a guest!"

"What's the matter with you?" asked Mrs. Jarr, peevishly. "Here you have been peevish to yourself for ten minutes! I suppose you are edgy you took me out to have a dinner and go to the theater to celebrate your raise of five dollars a week in salary! I'm sure I didn't ask you to bring me. You can take me home and go out with those whose company you prefer!"

And a tear rolled down her cheek. "Please—PLEASE!" cried Mr. Jarr. "I've troubles of my own."

Mrs. Jarr got her handbag from her lap and fished out a handkerchief. At this signal of distress all the waiters flocked around the table.

"Did this guy insult you, lady?" asked the headwaiter.

"No, this guy didn't!" snapped Mrs. Jarr. "You insolent bashfuler!"

"Well, what is the lady crying for?" asked the headwaiter, blandly.

"Because she finds herself in a joint of this kind, and is nervous for fear she won't get out before it is raided!" cried Mr. Jarr. "Come, my dear!" he said in his most solicitous manner.

And such was the indignation in his glance that the waiters fell back as Mr. and Mrs. Jarr walked out of the restaurant to look for a place to get something to eat.

They donned their wraps. "Charge it!" said Mr. Jarr, grandly, and the coat room bandits fell back abashed.

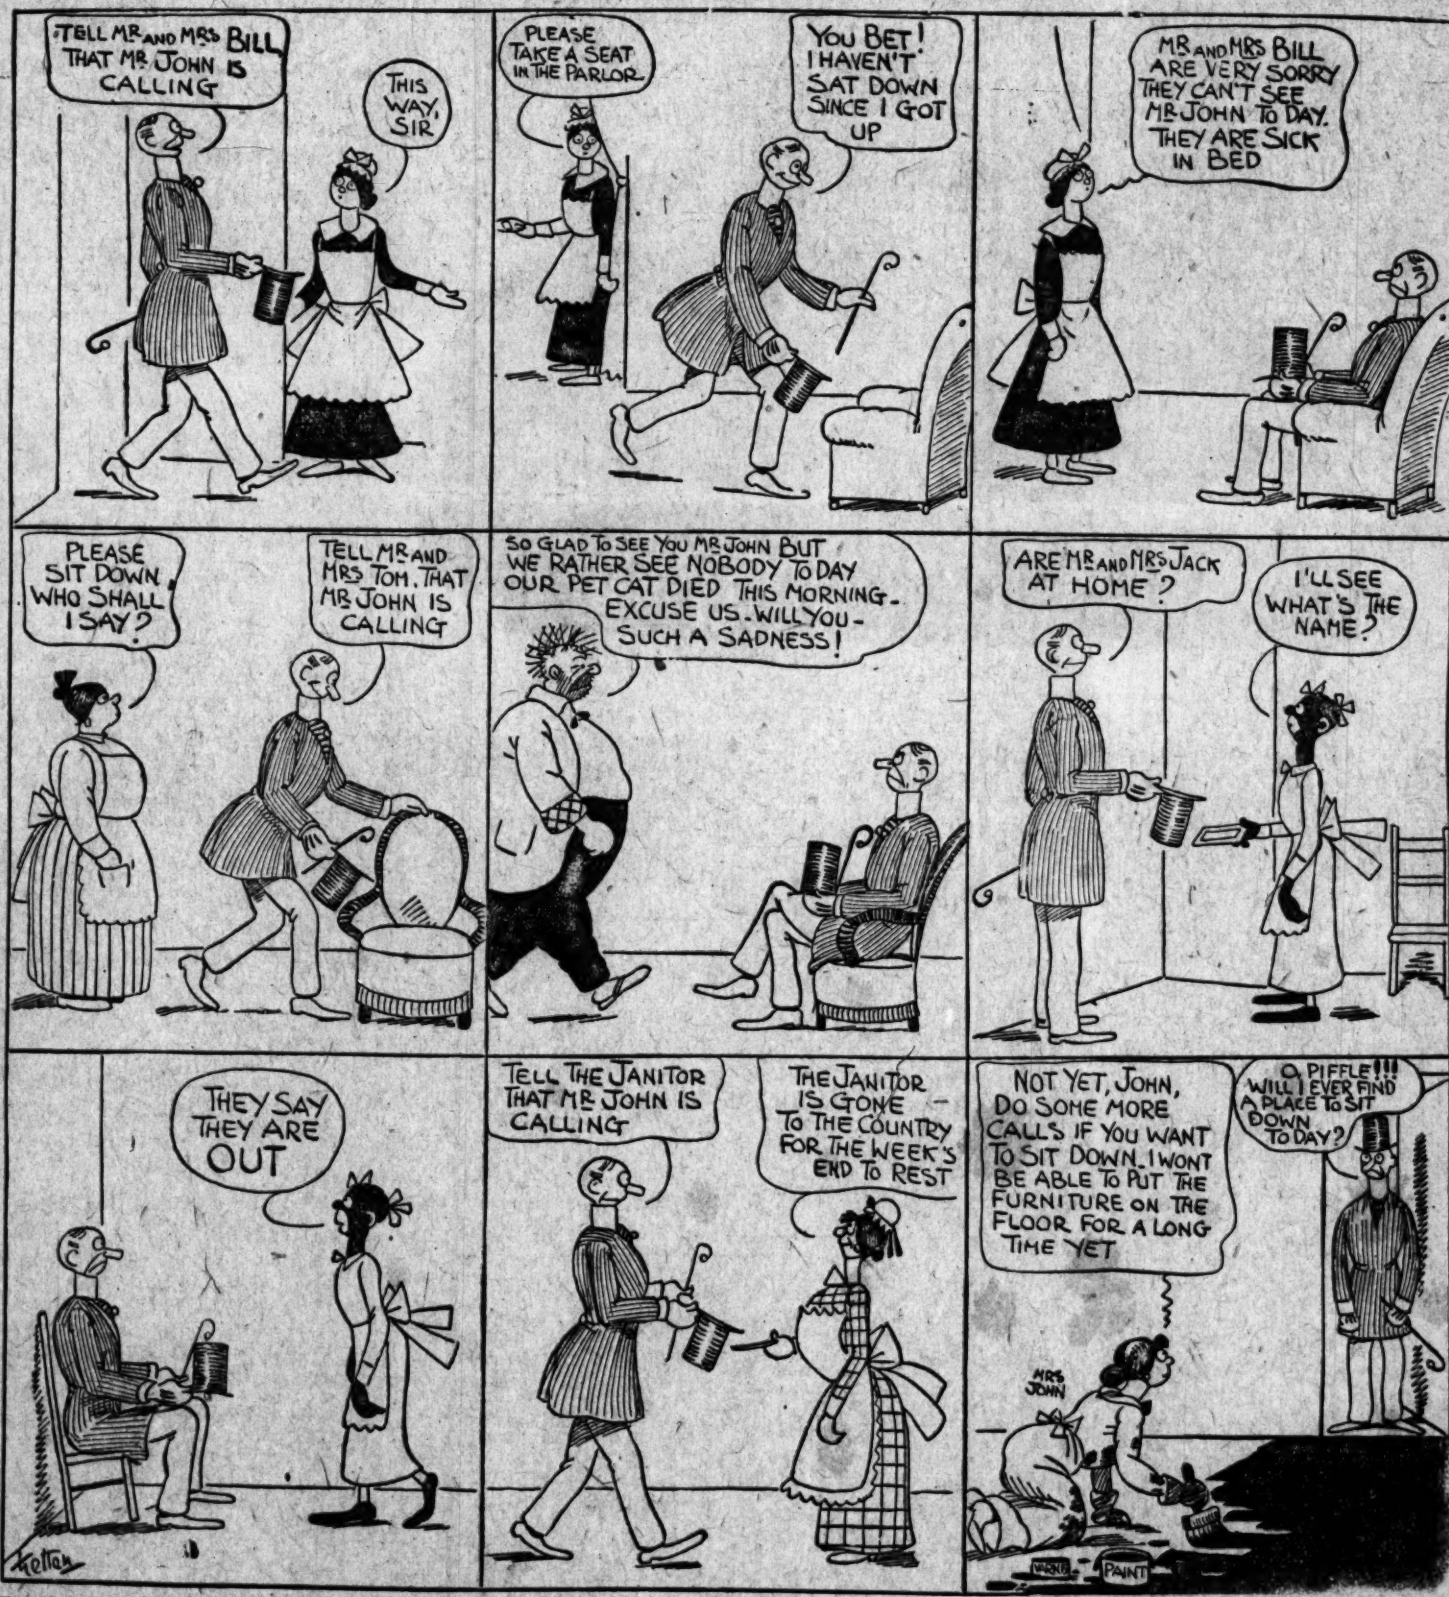

"We'll have to hurry, dear," said Mr. Jarr. "Do you know those scoundrels kept us waiting for over an hour?"

"I do-do-do-do-do! I feel a bit hungry," sniffed Mrs. Jarr. "I think it would have been better if you had let me stay home and you had gone out yourself!"

"Don't you let those insolent loafers spoil your evening, little lady!"

THE DAY OF UNREST

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch
By MAURICE KETTER.

OVER THE BUMPS.

Grouchily.

GRINDER: I see that a fellow over in England has invented a wire netting guard that will prevent automobiles from spattering mud on pedestrians.

Grouch: But what's mud for?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Doesn't Mind the Bumps. Billious: The way of the transgressor is hard. Cynicus: Oh, well, he can generally afford pneumatic tires.—Judge.

Cause for Nervousness. The great magazine editor was visibly worried.

"I'm nervous and afraid about our latest issue," he confessed to a visitor. "Why, what's the matter?"

"Well, you see, I have tried a strange experiment—something almost revolutionary—and I don't know how it's going to work. We've brought out our latest issue without the picture of a girl on the cover."

The Treating Habit. Gabe: What's the matter with your head? Steve: I treated Jones to a haircut yesterday and he insisted on me having another with him.

Spasm of High-mindedness. "Why are you looking so virtuous and high-minded lately?" "I've decided to cut out the musical comedy for one week and attend that performance of Shakespeare I see billed."

Would Never Do. An actor being unable to find work on the stage, and needing his meals, finally obtained the premises of a conductor's job on the street car lines. "When do I report?" "At 4 a. m. sharp," said the manager. "Shades of Booth!" exclaimed the Theatopian. "I couldn't stand such hours. The fines would offset the salary. Why, I'd be late for rehearsal every day."

Dumb. He was known as a surly gawk. And silence he would keep. In fact, he'd never even talk. Like others, in his sleep.

Fall Changes. The verbs are red and yellow. The adjectives are sere. The nouns are waxing mellow. For autumn time is here.

Economical. Bridegroom: Isn't five dollars a great deal for that intelligence office to charge for securing us a cook? Bride: Perhaps, love; but I won't change more than once a week.

The Sequel. First Bachelor Maid: I'd rather have a marriage certificate than a college diploma, for it is so much easier to get. Second Bachelor Maid: True; but think of the work after you get it!

Fanning the Flame.

FOR a number of years a bitter feud existed between the Browns and the Perkinses, next-door neighbors. The trouble had originated through the depredations of Brown's cat, and had grown so fixed an affair that neither party ever dreamed of "making up." One day, however, Brown sent by his servant a peace-making note for Mr. Perkins, which read:

"Mr. Perkins sends his compliments to Mr. Perkins and begs to say his old cat died this morning."

Mr. Perkins' written reply was bitter.

"Mr. Perkins is sorry to hear of Mr. Brown's trouble, but he had not heard that Mrs. Brown was ill."

It Went. A YOUNG woman went to a grocery store and asked the polite clerk if he had some good cheese.

"Yes, indeed," he replied. "I have some lovely cheese."

"It is not correct to call cheese 'lovely,'" she said.

"How is that?" he inquired.

"Because 'lovely' should be used to qualify only something that is alive."

"Well," retorted the clerk, "I'll stick to 'lovely.'—Dundee Advertiser."

Getting Up. "I AM thinking of getting myself up regardless of cost."

"Indeed? I presume you are going to make a very better man."

"Nothing of the kind. I am going to buy one of those new $5 alarm clocks."

Not That Family, Anyhow. IN Dublin, a car driver was caught by a zealous policeman in the act of driving furiously. The policeman stopped him and said: "Ye must give me yer name."

"But I won't give ye my name," said the driver.

"Ye'll get yerself into trouble," said the policeman, "if ye don't give me yer name."

"I won't give ye me name," said the driver.

"That is yer name?" said the angry policeman.

"Ye'd better find out," said the driver.

"Shure and I will," said the policeman. He went around to the side of the car where the name ought to have been painted, but the letters had been rubbed off.

"Aha!" said the policeman, "now ye'll get yerself into worse disgrace than ever. Yer name appears to be obliterated."

"Ye're wrong!" roared the driver. "Tis O'Brien.—The Continent."

STORIES ST. LOUISANS TELL

A SPEECHLESS STATESMAN.

VALLE REYBURN, son of the late Judge Reyburn, and one of the wealthy young society men of St. Louis, who, imitating Theron Catlin, have entered politics, is a candidate for the State Legislature in the Sixth District. He recently made his maiden political speech. Being a bit abashed in this platform debut he stumbled into the wide open lane that faces all tyros and falteringly mumbled: "Gentlemen, I make no claims to being an orator and in fact have nothing in particular to say to you."

At this juncture he was interrupted by one of his malcontented constituents exclaiming: "That's all right, old man, you'll sure be in your element at Jefferson City."

Had Studied. DURING the cotton-picking season in Texas a colored brother who had gone into the country to work, returned very much disgusted, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Didn't ye' get no offahs ter pick no cotton?" asked a friend.

"Sech ez dey was. White man done offered me one-third o' wat Ah could pick. Ah done tdk a look at de field an' saw dat when it wah all picked it wouldn't amount ter one-third. So Ah done lit out fer home!"

"Ye'all was—in luck not ter git fooled none."

"Yessah. Ah done went ter school an' studied ridentick when Ah was young."

An Obliging Creature. H E: The other night at the dance I took the same girl down to supper three times.

She: She was very accommodating, wasn't she?
